

Join us for a celebration of our one-year anniversary, co-hosted by CQ Roll Call, featuring a panel on the role of national security issues in the 2014 midterm elections (and beyond)

When: Monday, September 22, from 5:30-7:00 p.m. EDT (reception from 7:00-8:00 p.m.).

Where: NYU's Washington D.C. Center, Abramson Family Auditorium (1307 L Street, N.W.).

What: Please join CQ Roll Call and Just Security for a wide-ranging discussion of the role of national security in the 2014 midterm elections—and in shaping the agenda of the 114th Congress thereafter. The event will include a roundtable conversation focusing on the key debates (and underappreciated issues) heading into the elections, along with the extent to which national security issues will—and should—shape the agenda of the Congress that the American people return to Washington in January 2015. A cocktail reception will follow to celebrate the one-year anniversary of the launch of Just Security.

Seating is limited, so we ask that you kindly RSVP here by September 19.
