2 THE COURT: Good afternoon. Who do I have for the 3 LUPE plaintiffs?

4 MS. HULETT: Denise Hulett.

5 THE COURT: For the Kravitz plaintiffs?

6 MR. DURAISWAMY: Shankar Duraiswamy.

7 THE COURT: And for the Government?

8 MR. DUKE: And Ben Duke.

9 MR. GARDNER: For the Government, Josh Gardner and 10 Jody Hunt, Assistant Attorney General for the Civil Division.

11 THE COURT: Mr. Gardner, I know you're on vacation, 12 and so I hated to interrupt that.

13 Couple things. One, we do have a court reporter here.
14 It's Ms. Davis, who knows each of your voices well at this 15 point. She does ask that Mr. Duraiswamy speak slowly, and so 16 I'm sure you all will accommodate that. She does know each of 17 your voices at this point, so it's probably not necessary to 18 identify yourselves every time you speak.

19 So I guess the reason I wanted to have this call, 20 obviously, we had our call -- I guess it was yesterday; feels 21 like a while ago, but I think it was yesterday -- and then this 22 morning I saw a tweet that got my attention. I don't know how 23 many federal judges have Twitter accounts, but I happen to be 24 one of them, and I follow the President, and so I saw a tweet 25 that directly contradicted the position that Mr. Gardner had

1 shared with me yesterday.

2 I'll say in that regard I had felt somewhat bad about not 3 just immediately accepting Mr. Gardner's representation and 4 sort of taking some measures to try to pin it down. I think I 5 even indicated yesterday, and I'll indicate again today, that 6 Mr. Gardner and every government attorney who has appeared in 7 this case has been nothing but professional and candid with the 8 Court. And so my attempts to pin him down yesterday were not 9 sort of any reflection on him or what I think of his candor.
10 But then the tweet that I saw, which I suspect we all know the 11 tweet I'm referring to, then caused me to think I hadn't gone 12 far enough in terms of pinning the Government down on where 13 things stand.

14 So now we have a court reporter here. I'm going to ask, 15 frankly, the same question I asked yesterday to Mr. Gardner.
16 Is the Government going to continue efforts to place a 17 citizenship question on the 2020 census?

18 MR. GARDNER: Your Honor, this is Mr. Gardner. I 19 want to back up just a step and say that I've been with the 20 United States Department of Justice for 16 years, through 21 multiple Administrations, and I've always endeavored to be as 22 candid as possible with the Court. What I told the Court 23 yesterday was absolutely my best understanding of the state of 24 affairs and, apparently, also the Commerce Department's state
25 of affairs, because you probably saw Secretary Ross issued a

1 statement very similar to what I told the Court.

2 The tweet this morning was the first I had heard of the 3 President's position on this issue, just like the plaintiffs 4 and Your Honor. I do not have a deeper understanding of what 5 that means at this juncture other than what the President has 6 tweeted. But, obviously, as you can imagine, I am doing my 7 absolute best to figure out what's going on.

8 I can tell you that I have confirmed that the Census 9 Bureau is continuing with the process of printing the 10 questionnaire without a citizenship question, and that process 11 has not stopped.

12 THE COURT: All right. I'll hear from either 13 plaintiffs' counsel. Mr. Duraiswamy, I'll start with you if 14 you have any comments.

15 MR. DURAISWAMY: Your Honor, I think it underscores, 16 obviously, the need for a stipulated order, as we talked about 17 yesterday, that makes clear not only that the Government is 18 printing the questionnaire for the 2020 census without a 19 citizenship question but that there will be no further effort
20 to inquire about citizenship status as part of the 2020 census
21 in any manner. We prepared a draft stipulated order that we're 22 prepared to send to the Government along those lines.

23 I think it also suggests that we may need a further 24 provision of that order that makes clear that the defendants 25 will not communicate to the public anything to the contrary

1 suggesting that the 2020 census is inquiring about citizenship
2 status. And, further, that they will counter, publicly counter 3 any such misinformation that comes from government officials.
4 So we are working on a stipulated order to that effect.

5 Given Mr. Gardner's own uncertainty, it's not clear to me
6 if the Government is saying we will continue with the process 7 of working out the stipulated order, that they're prepared to 8 move forward with that, or if they're saying that they need to 9 revisit this.

10 THE COURT: Let me ask before I get Ms. Hulett's 11 perspective. As to your second point that there should be some 12 requirement that they not say anything to the contrary, what 13 would be the authority, what would be the basis for me to issue 14 that order? Obviously, if they're willing to stipulate to that 15 in an order they agree to. But let's assume for the sake of 16 argument that they're not. What would be the basis for me to 17 order them not to -- and I assume you're including the 18 President of the United States in what you're suggesting -- not 19 to make any statements contrary to the order that they're not 20 going to include the question?

21 MR. DURAISWAMY: Well, we have included in our 22 complaint, I think both in the Kravitz complaint and in the 23 LUPE complaint, as part of our request for relief not just an 24 injunction but any such relief as is necessary in the interest 25 of justice. Given the way in which this has developed and

1 given the inconsistent statements that we're hearing from the 2 Justice Department and the Commerce Department, on the one 3 hand, and from the President on the other hand, we think that 4 to effectuate the relief that we've sought, which is an 5 injunction barring the inquiring of citizenship status on the 6 2020 census, this is the kind of relief that's necessary. And 7 it's appropriate and within the power of the Court.

8 MS. HULETT: Your Honor, if I may add something.
9 This is Denise Hulett.

10 THE COURT: Sure.

11 MS. HULETT: The President's tweet has some of the 12 same effects that the addition of the question would in the 13 first place and some of the same effects on the 18-month battle
14 that was just waged over the citizenship question. It leaves 15 the immigrant communities to believe that the Government is 16 still after information that could endanger them. If you add 17 that to the interview that the President did, sharing that his 18 reason for wanting the citizenship question on the form was so 19 that the Government could distinguish between citizens and 20 illegal aliens and how nonsensical that is, it has the effect
21 of leading the public to believe that the Census is not only 22 after that information but is willing to violate some of the 23 provinces of protection that our plaintiff organizations have 24 been trying to reassure communities about.

25 So we strongly believe that we're going to need some

1 affirmative commitment, whether it's through a stipulation or 2 by order of this Court, an affirmative commitment from the 3 Government to counter misinformation wherever in the Government
4 that it comes from, a commitment that they will respond quickly
5 and comprehensively to that kind of misinformation.

6 Today is a good example. There was no response from the 7 Commerce Department, that I know of, to counteract the position 8 that was expressed either in a tweet or in an interview, and 9 that's going to cause the same kinds of harm and injury and --

10 THE COURT: Let me -- I'm sorry. I didn't mean to 11 cut you off. I apologize. Go ahead.

12 MS. HULETT: I was just going to add that if the 13 Government is not prepared at this point to say that they will 14 be negotiating quickly over this, we think that we would have 15 to make a request to reinstate our preliminary injunction 16 motion and to move forward with a scheduling order on discovery 17 because the injury at this point is ongoing.

18 THE COURT: Let me make a couple of comments, and 19 then I'll turn back to Mr. Gardner to get his thoughts.

20 I assume, although maybe I'm wrong about this, that the 21 parties aren't suggesting I can enjoin the President of the 22 United States from tweeting things. Maybe you are suggesting 23 that. But I will say my initial reaction to that is to have 24 some concern.

25 But what I perhaps am taking you to suggest is that there

1 could be an order -- and I'm not saying I agree to this; I'm 2 just trying to tee up the issue for Mr. Gardner to respond --
3 that there could be a mechanism by which I order -- and, again, 4 I'm not saying I'm inclined to do this -- the Census Bureau or 5 the Department of Commerce to take whatever steps are necessary
6 to counteract any such message, which, again, I this is an odd 7 place for the judiciary to be.

8 But I'll at least hear what Mr. Gardner's initial take 9 is, understanding you're still unclear yourself, it seems, on 10 the primary question as to whether or not any of this is going 11 to end up being necessary. I am at least curious as to your 12 initial response to those secondary suggestions from 13 plaintiffs.

14 MR. GARDNER: Sure, Your Honor. To back up, this is 15 a very fluid situation which we are trying to get our arms 16 around and, obviously, once we get more information, we will 17 communicate that immediately to the Court and the parties.

18 I do want to address a preliminary issue though, and that 19 is that the current status quo is that plaintiffs are fully 20 protected. The Supreme Court vacated the March decision which 21 was the basis for the inclusion of the citizenship question.
22 So that final-agency action has been enjoined, and there is no 23 current additional final-agency action out there to enjoin or 24 to even challenge.

25 I recognize this is a fluid situation and perhaps that

1 might change, but we're just not there yet, and I can't 2 possibly predict at this juncture what exactly is going to 3 happen. I think the process by which we have been sort of 4 operating for the past week, while it may be inconvenient for 5 the Court, and I apologize about that, is to maintain 6 consistent contact so we can keep updating the Court and the 7 parties as to the state of affairs.

8 But as of now, the basis for the citizenship question is 9 firmly enjoined, vacated, and does not exist. If there is a 10 different decision in the future, plaintiffs obviously would 11 have every opportunity to file an amended complaint, file a PI
12 or whatever other processes they think are appropriate. But I 13 think the current fluidity of the state of play suggests the 14 status quo is we need to see how these things develop.

15 And at that juncture, Your Honor, if you have additional 16 questions, I can turn it over to AAG Hunt.

17 MR. HUNT: Your Honor, this is Joseph Hunt, Assistant 18 Attorney General for the Civil Division. If I might just add 19 my thoughts to what Mr. Gardner just said.

20 THE COURT: Sure.

21 MR. HUNT: We at the Department of Justice have been 22 instructed to examine whether there is a path forward, 23 consistent with the Supreme Court's decision, that would allow 24 us to include the citizenship question on the census. We think 25 there may be a legally available path under the Supreme Court's

1 decision. We're examining that, looking at near-term options
2 to see whether that's viable and possible.

3 And so to the extent we can identify an option for that 4 to work, if we continue to examine the decision and believe 5 that we have a viable path forward to that work, our current 6 plan would be to file a motion in the Supreme Court to request
7 instructions on remand to govern further proceedings in order 8 to simplify and expedite the remaining litigation and provide 9 clarity to the process going forward.

10 So as Mr. Gardner said, it's very fluid at present 11 because we are still examining the Supreme Court's decision to 12 see if that option is still available to us.

13 THE COURT: That's helpful to understand, and I 14 appreciate you adding that.

15 Here's where we are. And then if either side has a 16 different view, I'll hear that.

17 By Friday at 2 p.m. I want one of two things. I either 18 want a stipulation, as we've been discussing, indicating that 19 the citizenship question will not appear on the census, or I 20 want a proposed scheduling order for how we're going forward on 21 the equal protection claim that's been remanded to this Court.
22 I want one of those two things by Friday at two o'clock.

23 So I would expect that the parties will have to meet and 24 confer sometime earlier on Friday to determine which of those 25 things you're submitting to me by Friday at two o'clock. But I

1 want one of those two things by Friday at two o'clock.

2 If, in the case of the scheduling order, the parties are 3 not able to come to an agreement as to what it should look 4 like, you can submit to me competing options, and we'll have a 5 call that afternoon. I'll be here Friday. We'll have a call 6 that afternoon where the Court will make a final decision on 7 how we're proceeding. But we will, if this is not resolved by 8 Friday at 2 p.m., the equal protection claim in this case is 9 moving forward.

10 Any questions as to that?

11 MR. GARDNER: Your Honor, this is Mr. Gardner. The 12 one thing I would request is, given that tomorrow is the Fourth 13 of July and the difficulty in assembling people from all over 14 the place, is it possible that we could do this on Monday?

15 THE COURT: No.

16 MR. GARDNER: And again -- okay.

17 THE COURT: No. Because timing is an issue. Timing
18 is an issue, and we've lost a week at this point. And this 19 isn't anything against anybody on this call. I've been told 20 different things, and it's becoming increasingly frustrating.

21 If you were Facebook and an attorney for Facebook told me
22 one thing, and then I read a press release from Mark Zuckerberg
23 telling me something else, I would be demanding that Mark
24 Zuckerberg appear in court with you the next time because I
25 would be saying I don't think you speak for your client

1 anymore.

2 I think I'm actually being really reasonable here and 3 just saying I need a final answer by Friday at 2 p.m. or we're 4 going forward. That's where we are. Because we've wasted a 5 week. The Fourth Circuit sent this back to me with a promise
6 from me that I would get it done, the discovery done in 45 7 days, a hearing, and then a decision, and they sent it back to 8 me with that promise having been made. And we've lost seven 9 days already with the back and forth, which, again, I don't 10 blame anybody on this call for, but that's where we are.

11 So Friday, 2 p.m., we're going forward or we're resolving 12 it. That's where we are.

13 MR. DUKE: Your Honor, this is Ben Duke for the 14 Kravitz plaintiffs. Could we ask what happened to the 15 Government's repeated representations, including to the United 16 States Supreme Court, which the Supreme Court relied on, that 17 June 30th was an absolute deadline and that they needed to have 18 this finalized and to move forward as of that date? Because 19 what we've now heard from the defendants is that that wasn't 20 true, that they now think that they can even dither over the 21 July 4th weekend and ask for more time to examine this and 22 possibly make a further motion to the Supreme Court for 23 instructions on how to eventually undercut what the Supreme 24 Court has already decided. It is completely inconsistent with 25 the positions that they've been taking.

1 THE COURT: I understand that. I suspect we're not 2 going to get a useful answer to that question, so I'm not sure
3 that I really want to wade into that at this juncture.

4 Any other questions?

5 MR. GARDNER: Nothing from the Government, Your 6 Honor.

7 THE COURT: Plaintiffs?

8 MR. DURAISWAMY: Your Honor, this is Shankar
9 Duraiswamy. The only thing I would add is that, consistent 10 with Mr. Gardner's prior communications with us, the permanent 11 injunction from this Court remains in effect, the injunction
12 permanently preventing the Government from adding a citizenship 13 question to the 2020 census. So we agree at least on that 14 point.

15 THE COURT: And I meant to respond to that. I made a 16 note and then overlooked it.

17 I don't think there is currently a need to litigate the 18 motion for preliminary injunction because there is at least 19 one, if not more, injunction in place. So I do agree with 20 that.

21 So I'll look forward to getting something Friday at 2 22 p.m., and then, if necessary, we'll get on the phone after 23 that.
