

Congress of the United States
Washington, DC 20515

February 21, 2019

The Honorable Mick Mulvaney
Acting Chief of Staff
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. Mulvaney:

The Committees are writing to request information regarding reports that President Donald Trump may have violated the Presidential Records Act (PRA) by destroying documents in order to keep secret the details of meetings with Russian Federation President Vladimir Putin.

Congress enacted the PRA in the wake of the Watergate scandal and President Nixon's attempts to destroy White House tapes. The legislation was intended to ensure that all presidential records "are properly preserved and made readily available to the American public."¹

The PRA makes clear that presidential records belong to the American people and that President Trump is required to preserve those records:

Through the implementation of records management controls and other necessary actions, the President shall take all such steps as may be necessary to assure that the activities, deliberations, decisions, and policies that reflect the performance of the President's constitutional, statutory, or other official or ceremonial duties are adequately documented and that such records are preserved and maintained as Presidential records pursuant to the requirements of this section and other provisions of law.²

President Trump is prohibited from disposing of records unless they "no longer have administrative, historical, informational, or evidentiary value," and he must first obtain the written views of the Archivist of the United States before disposing of these records.³

² 44 U.S.C. § 2203.

On January 13, 2019, the Washington Post reported that President Trump confiscated the notes of his interpreter following a July 7, 2017, meeting with President Putin in Hamburg, Germany and instructed his interpreter not to discuss what happened in the meeting. U.S. officials also reportedly were never able to obtain reliable information about the President's two-hour meeting with President Putin in Helsinki, Finland, on July 16, 2018, although the U.S. interpreter was seen leaving the meeting with pages of notes.⁴

Previous reports have also raised concerns that President Trump may be violating the PRA by physically tearing up presidential records.⁵

Another report has raised concerns that President Trump may be failing to document hundreds of calls and meetings that do not appear on his schedule. A press report documenting three months of President Trump's schedules indicated that he spends approximately 60% of his time in unspecified "Executive Time."⁶ In response, Madeleine Westerhout, the Director of Oval Office Operations, seemingly confirmed in a tweet that the President was having numerous calls and meetings that do not appear on his schedule. She wrote: "What these don't show are the hundreds of calls and meetings @realDonaldTrump takes everyday."⁷

For these reasons, we now request that you preserve all documents, communications, and other data ("records") that may be required for the Committees' oversight and investigative duties relating to this subject. The term "records" is broad and includes log files and metadata. For purposes of this request, "preserve" means taking reasonable steps to prevent the partial or full destruction, alteration, testing, deletion, shredding, incineration, wiping, relocation, migration, theft, or mutation of electronic records, including emails, as well as negligent or intentional handling which would foreseeably make such records incomplete or inaccessible. Specifically, you should:

1. exercise reasonable efforts to identify and notify former employees and contractors, subcontractors, and consultants who may have access to such records that they are to be preserved;
2. exercise reasonable efforts to identify, recover, and preserve any records which have been deleted or marked for deletion but are still recoverable; and

3. if it is the routine practice of any employee or contractor to destroy or otherwise alter such records, either halt such practices or arrange for the preservation of complete and accurate duplicates or copies of such records, suitable for production, if requested.

In addition, we request that you provide answers to the following questions by March 1, 2019:

1. Did President Trump take possession of the interpreter's notes from the Hamburg meeting with Vladimir Putin on July 7, 2017? If so:
 - a. Did President Trump destroy or alter the interpreter's notes?
 - b. What steps did President Trump take to preserve the interpreter's notes?
 - c. Who currently has possession, custody, or control of the interpreter's notes?
 - d. Have the interpreter's notes or a copy been provided to the State Department?
2. Does any official within the Trump Administration, including within the White House, have any record of any meeting or call between President Trump and President Putin? If so, provide the date of the meeting or call, the location of the meeting or call, the identity of all officials who have possession, custody, or control of the records, and an explanation of how the records have been, and are continuing to be, preserved.
3. Which officials within the Trump Administration, including within the White House, were provided summaries or readouts of President Trump's meetings or calls with Vladimir Putin, including the Hamburg and Helsinki meetings?
4. Did the United States Government pay the interpreters who staffed the meetings or calls between President Trump and Vladimir Putin, including the Hamburg and Helsinki meetings?
5. How has President Trump documented and preserved records relating to the "hundreds of calls and meetings" that Madeleine Westerhaut claimed do not appear on his schedule?
