Oversight Republicans Block Six More Subpoenas for a Total of 52 Motions Denied

Jul 17, 2018 | Press Release

Chairman Gowdy Has Perfect Record of Zero Subpoenas Since Trump Became President

Washington, DC (July 17, 2018)—Today, during a business meeting of the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform, Republicans blocked consideration of six more Democratic requests to allow Members to offer, debate, and vote on subpoenas—bringing the total number of subpoena motions denied by Oversight Committee Republicans during Donald Trump’s Presidency to 52.

“It is difficult to imagine House Republicans doing more to protect President Trump than they are now—especially on the Oversight Committee,” said Ranking Member Elijah E. Cummings. “Instead of serving as a check on executive branch offenses, Oversight Committee Republicans are enabling President Trump’s abuses, rationalizing his incompetence, and interfering with the independent investigation being conducted by Special Counsel Robert Mueller.”

Since Rep. Trey Gowdy assumed his role as Chairman, the Oversight Committee has not issued a single subpoena to anyone, despite the Trump Administration's refusal to respond to dozens of requests for documents, including requests from Gowdy himself.

Gowdy issued 13 subpoenas during his tenure as Chairman of the Benghazi Committee investigating the Obama Administration and then-presidential candidate Hillary Clinton.

Vice Ranking Member Gerry Connolly offered a motion to debate and vote on six subpoena motions, but Republicans blocked his motion.

“Today marks the fifth time that we, on our side of the aisle, have asked during business meetings to let our Committee vote on subpoenas covering issues of critical importance to the public,” Connolly said. “The past four motions were ruled out of order. No subpoenas were issued, and the Committee did not have an opportunity to debate or vote on the motions.”
