Alvin,

Just as quick follow-up to our conversation, I had my team search likely places IF the document were to have been disseminated to normal sharing platforms/channels. Specifically, they checked [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

So, while still possible it could have been individually passed by email or other TFO liaison to WFO, it indicates it was not likely shared broadly - if at all- through normal intelligence dissemination channels.

Let me know if you have any questions.

Thanks,
Pam

Subject: [EXTERNAL EMAIL] - Washington Post inquiry/intel memo about Jan. 6

Hi--

We're writing a story today about a memo produced by the Capitol Police Intelligence and Information Coordination Division on January 3, which offered a very specific warning of what might occur on January 6. The memo said there was a high likelihood of Stop the Steal protestors storming the Capitol, that an unpermitted group could swell to as many as 10,000 people, and that possible militia members might join the group with gas masks and tactical gear. The memo was based on material from Parler and white supremacist web sites and chat forums.

Can you say if the FBI was provided this memo? If so, when? What was done in response?

Many thanks,

Good afternoon,
Good afternoon,

I asked the reporter to provide whatever document he has. He will not do so. But he provided these additional details which I am sharing for your awareness:

If it helps in your inquiries, the document was produced January 3 at 1500 hours by IICD at Capitol Police. As far as specifics, here is what I can give you for now:

- *It said the expectation of violence was high
- *It said there would likely be thousands of enraged people, spurred by the President
- *It said Congress and lawmakers could be targeted, which would be different from previous Trump rallies
- *It said organizers were urging participants to come armed, even sometimes specifically mentioning combat gear

I want to be clear I'm asking if the Bureau got this warning. I am not saying the document indicates the Bureau has it.

But I'm also asking, if Capitol Police had this, you had the Norfolk document plus other online chatter and things you were seeing, should the Bureau have done more? Should you have done a joint assessment with DHS or taken other steps?

Good afternoon,
Good afternoon,

I asked the reporter to provide whatever document he has. He will not do so. But he provided these additional details which I am sharing for your awareness:

If it helps in your inquiries, the document was produced January 3 at 1500 hours by IICD at Capitol Police. As far as specifics, here is what I can give you for now:

- *It said the expectation of violence was high
- *It said there would likely be thousands of enraged people, spurred by the President
- *It said Congress and lawmakers could be targeted, which would be different from previous Trump rallies
- *It said organizers were urging participants to come armed, even sometimes specifically mentioning combat gear

I want to be clear I'm asking if the Bureau got this warning. I am not saying the document indicates the Bureau has it.

But I'm also asking, if Capitol Police had this, you had the Norfolk document plus other online chatter and things you were seeing, should the Bureau have done more? Should you have done a joint assessment with DHS or taken other steps?

Hi--

We're writing a story today about a memo produced by the Capitol Police Intelligence and Information Coordination Division on January 3, which offered a very specific warning of what might occur on January 6. The memo said there was a high likelihood of Stop the Steal protestors storming the Capitol, that an unpermitted group could swell to as many as 10,000 people, and that possible militia members might join the group with gas masks and tactical gear. The memo was based on material from Parler and white supremacist web sites and chat forums.

Can you say if the FBI was provided this memo? If so, when? What was done in response?

IACP CoT Meeting (1/26)

- Attached you'll find the updated agenda and PPT, as well as the new year letter. Please let us know if you have any feedback or changes you'd like us to make before providing to the Committee next week. The PPT should give everyone an idea of the flow of conversation and it includes several potential deliverables for discussion (last slide). I've also copied below a suggestion from [redacted] about

- Meeting platform: The free version of Google Meet requires a Gmail account for use and is capped at 60 minutes, so it probably wouldn't work for this group. We spoke with IACP and they said most committees have been using Ring Central or Zoom, so we've asked them to set us up on Ring Central.
- [redacted] are working on a facilitation guide for you and [redacted] with the goal of having more committee member involvement/participation.
- We've scheduled another prep meeting on 1/22 and a call with [redacted] on 1/25.

The House was in session this week, approving an Article of Impeachment of President Trump. The Senate is not expected to move forward with the trial of President Trump until he leaves office. The inauguration of President-elect Biden and Vice President-elect Harris will occur on January 20. Additionally, Georgia is expected to officially certify it's Senate elections next week, with the two new Democratic Senators being sworn in soon afterwards. Fentanyl and First Responder Safety: Myths vs Reality

February 3 @ 1:00 pm (EST)

Fentanyl and drugs containing fentanyl are the leading cause of overdose deaths in America. Law enforcement officers are encountering this deadly drug with increasing frequency during traffic stops, on calls for service, and while conducting searches of homes, business and jail facilities. This presentation will discuss the danger of fentanyl and how to safely conduct presumptive tests in the field to determine if the substance contains fentanyl. The rapid and safe identification of fentanyl by law enforcement officers in the field is the first step to safely collecting and processing that critical evidence.

The Capitol riot, anti-Semitism and what Joe Biden can do

The Hill | Michael Masters, National Director and CEO, Secure Community Network

Among the mob that took over the U.S. Capitol was a man wearing a sweatshirt that's hard to forget. It read: "Camp Auschwitz." In December, another man attended a Proud Boys rally in Washington, wearing a t-shirt with the logo "6MWE," short for "6 Million [Jews] Wasn't Enough." It's a sickening reminder that anti-Semitism not only exists but that individuals are comfortable enough to emblazon statements that stand for — or call for — the genocide of Jews. According to the FBI, hate-crime incidents in churches, synagogues, mosques and temples increased by roughly 35 percent between 2014 and 2018. Continue reading here.

Reuters | John Shiffman

The director of intelligence for the U.S. Capitol Police warned Congress in July that rebellion against COVID-19 precautions had accelerated violence by right-wing "revolutionary extremists," according to congressional testimony. Four months before he joined the force, John K. Donohue, then a private security consultant, testified that the country desperately needed a sophisticated social media early-warning system, akin to the U.S. nuclear missile launch detection capability, to prevent a catastrophe. Continue reading here.

'We got to hold this door' How battered D.C. police made a stand against the Capitol mob

The Washington Post | Peter Hermann

Blinded by smoke and choking on gas and bear spray, stripped of his radio and badge, D.C. police officer Michael Fanone and his battered colleagues fought to push back rioters trying to force their way into an entrance to the U.S. Capitol. The officers had been at it for hours, unaware that others in the mob had already breached the building through different entrances. For them, the West Terrace doors — which open into a tunnel-like hallway allowing access to an area under the Rotunda — represented the last stand before the Capitol fell. Continue reading here.

Pentagon watchdog to launch probe of white supremacists in the military

The Hill | Ellen Mitchell

The Pentagon's internal watchdog announced Thursday that it will investigate whether the Department of Defense (DOD) has adequate procedures in place to prevent white supremacists and other extremists from joining and remaining in the military. "Our objective is to determine the extent to which the DoD and the Military Services have implemented policy and procedures that prohibit active advocacy and active participation related to supremacist, extremist, or criminal gang doctrine, ideology, or causes by active duty military personnel," the Inspector General's office said. Continue reading here.

Toxins in marijuana smoke may be harmful to health, study finds

CNN | Sandee LaMotte

Smoking weed may expose you to the same type of toxic chemicals found in tobacco smoke, a new study finds. People who only smoked marijuana had higher blood and urine levels of several smoke-related toxins such as naphthalene, acrylamide and acrylonitrile than nonsmokers, according to the study published Monday in the journal EClinicalMedicine. Naphthalene is associated with anemia, liver and neurological damage, while acrylamide and acrylonitrile have been associated with cancer and other health issues. Continue reading here.

In the chill of night!

Motorola Solutions Blog | Ray Guidetti

Today is Law Enforcement Appreciation Day. Quite frankly, in my former career I paid much more attention to National Law Enforcement Week in the Spring when we honored and mourned the loss of those peace officers that paid the ultimate sacrifice. Growing up in the Pipes & Drums of the Blue & Gold it was our unwavering mission to honor the sacrifice of those that were killed in the line of duty. I guess then I took being a cop for granted. I was too busy and focused to think any differently. After all, was it not our mission to be out there in harm's way to defend the defenseless, assist the weary, and aid the helpless. Yet, today, now watching from the cheap seats my appreciation for what police officers do day-to-day has grown exponentially. Whether it is the stories of heroism, the stories of service, or just the stories of good deeds we see the police doing every day for their communities. Continue reading here.

Status: Approved by the House on 1/12.

H.Res. 24 – Impeaching Donald John Trump, President of the United States, for high crimes and misdemeanors

Status: Approved by the House on 1/13/2021

Summary: This resolution impeaches President Donald John Trump for high crimes and misdemeanors. Specifically, the resolution sets forth an article of impeachment stating that President Trump incited an insurrection against the government of the United States. The article states that prior to the joint session of Congress held on January 6, 2021, to count the votes of the electoral college, President Trump repeatedly issued false statements asserting that the presidential election results were fraudulent and should not be accepted by the American people or certified by state or federal officials; shortly before the joint session commenced, President Trump reiterated false claims to a crowd near the White House and willfully made statements to the crowd that encouraged and foreseeably resulted in lawless action at the Capitol; members of the crowd, incited by President Trump, unlawfully breached and vandalized the Capitol and engaged in other violent, destructive, and seditious acts, including the killing of a law enforcement officer; President Trump's conduct on January 6, 2021, followed his prior efforts to subvert and obstruct the certification of the presidential election, which included a threatening phone call to the Secretary of State of Georgia on January 2, 2021; President Trump gravely endangered the security of the United States and its institutions of government, threatened the integrity of the democratic system, interfered with the peaceful transition of power, and imperiled a coequal branch of government; and by such conduct, President Trump warrants impeachment and trial, removal from office, and disqualification to hold U.S. office.

New York Times Inaccurate Reporting: OPA/WFO – Both OPA and Washington Field received several requests for comment following an inaccurate report in The New York Times that the FBI was investigating 37 subjects related to the killing of Capitol Police Ofc. Brian Sicknick. WFO worked to correct the initial Times reporting by providing guidance clarifying that the 37 figure was inaccurate.

U.S. CAPITOL VIOLENCE

Boston – Numerous reporters asked if the FBI is investigating if a Boston police officer attended the Capitol siege and posted threats on social media inciting violence. PAO provided the following statement: "The investigation into the events at the U.S. Capitol is being led by the FBI's Washington Field Office. The FBI's Boston Division is prepared to assist, but we cannot confirm or deny the existence of any investigation or investigative steps at this time."

Boston – The Boston Globe asked about the arrest of Daniel Price in Providence, Rhode Island, by the RI JTTF last week prior to the riots in D.C. PAO declined comment. The reporter also asked about a YouTube video of a Trump supporter at the Capitol. PAO advised that the investigation into the events at the U.S. Capitol is being led by the Washington Field Office and that the Boston Division is prepared to assist but cannot confirm or deny the existence of an investigation at this time.

Boston – WJAR-TV in Rhode Island asked if there were any billboards about the Capitol riots in the state. PAO advised that she didn't arrange for the billboards but there is a possibility that there might be some if they were arranged through FBI HQ or Washington Field.

Buffalo – Fielded numerous media inquiries about the execution of a federal search warrant at the Rochester home of Dominic Pezzola. Pezzola, who surrendered to the FBI this morning, appeared this afternoon in the U.S. District Court for the Western District of New York on charges filed in the U.S. District Court in the District of Columbia, including, "Obstruction of an official proceeding; destruction of government property; [and] restricted buildings or grounds."

Cincinnati – Several media outlets requested comment after a press release was issued by the U.S. attorney for the Southern District of Ohio about today's JTTF arrest of Justin Stoll for making interstate threats and threatening a witness. The alleged crimes arise from Stoll's communications online following his participation in the riots at the U.S. Capitol. PAO referred reporters to the press release and unsealed criminal complaint.

Indianapolis – The New York Post asked if Jon Shaffer, a member of the Iced Earth band and an Indiana native, has been arrested related to the Jan. 6 event at the Capitol. Shaffer was featured on one of the WFO posters. PAO provided the link to the DOJ page listing all those arrested to date and the following statement: "Like FBI field offices across the country, FBI Indianapolis is receiving tips regarding Hoosiers who may have been at the Capitol building in Washington, D.C., Jan. 6. Any subjects that are arrested/indicted will be prosecuted by the United States Attorney's Office in Washington, D.C."

Indianapolis – A northern Indiana newspaper asked where to find names of Hoosiers arrested in connection to the violence at the Capitol. She also asked if those charged would be arrested by local police or the FBI. PAO provided reporter with the link to the DOJ page listing all those charged to date, said arrests would be made by the FBI, and said some suspects have surrendered.

Philadelphia – The Harrisburg ABC affiliate asked if the FBI has received photos of an individual involved in the Capitol violence who may be local to the Harrisburg area, and whether we've identified and interviewed him. Citing the ongoing investigation led by Washington Field, PAO declined to comment on specific photos or investigative steps and detailed how to review Seeking Information posters and submit digital media and tip information to the FBI.

Washington Field – ADIC D'Antuono participated in a national media call this afternoon with Acting U.S. Attorney for the District of Columbia Steven R. Sherwin about the violence at the U.S. Capitol. D'Antuono focused on the assault on law enforcement cases, but also said the FBI is making great progress on all fronts, including the pipe bomb case, the rioting, and violence investigations.

Washington Field – Worked with NPOU and our electronic billboard partners to produce and distribute a call-to-action billboard asking the public across the country to report tips on the U.S. Capitol violence via the phone tipline and fbi.gov/USCapitol. The billboard is deploying across the country today.

OTHER LOCAL STORIES

Multiple field offices – Field offices continued to receive media inquiries about expected armed protests in all 50 states and other possible violence. Reporters also asked about security plans for state capitols; some outlets had more specific questions. Albany, Atlanta, Boston, Detroit, Indianapolis, Minneapolis, Newark, New Haven, Omaha, Philadelphia, Sacramento, and Salt Lake City reported related inquiries.

Albany – SAC Relford joined officials from the New York State Police, Albany Police, Albany County Sheriff's Department, and the National Guard at a press conference to talk about combined security measures for the upcoming protests this weekend.

PAS reiterated the planned protest talking points and stressed that the public should contact the field office with tips about potential violence or go to tips.fbi.gov. Story airs tonight.

Boston – WHDH-TV sought to confirm another TV’s station’s report that the FBI is investigating a Boston Police Department employee for allegedly buying thousands of dollars in auto parts for cruisers that were not shipped to the department. PAO advised that in keeping with our standard practice, we cannot confirm or deny the existence of an investigation.

Boston – Several reporters asked for updates on the current threat picture and FBI Boston’s posture in the days leading up to next week’s inauguration and what’s being done locally to ensure public safety. PAO drafted a response based on the talking points sent out earlier this week.

Boston – WCVB-TV asked about a new FBI bulletin advising law enforcement and the public that the danger from explosive devices during the upcoming protests is substantial. PAO provided standard response relating to intelligence products.

Detroit – SAC Waters participated in a press conference alongside the Michigan State Police, Lansing police and fire departments, Ingham County sheriff, and the Michigan National Guard to discuss the security measures being taken in advance of this weekend’s planned protests at state capitols around the country. Waters: “Our focus is on identifying violent agitators and extremists who use the guise of First Amendment-protected activity to incite violence and wreak havoc.” In response to a question, Waters also addressed the challenges the FBI faces in monitoring encrypted social media. He encouraged the public to contact the FBI with information about potential violence or suspected criminal activity at any upcoming protest.

Detroit – A local radio station interviewed ASAC Johnson and victim specialist Novock about the FBI’s human trafficking program. They discussed trends Detroit has seen since the beginning of COVID and the challenges these investigations pose. Novock described the unique needs of trafficking survivors and ways for the public to report suspected trafficking activities. The interviews will air today as part of a two-segment story.

Indianapolis – Issued a release with law enforcement partner agencies about potential threats to the state capitol and other government buildings leading up to the Inauguration. The release asked citizens to provide tips about Indiana-based violence, and directed them to tips.fbi.gov/USCapitol for tips about the Jan. 6 incident.

Indianapolis – A reporter with the NBC affiliate asked if platforms used by extremists are being taken down by law enforcement after noting one of the main militia websites she checks for chatter was down. PAO advised she could not speak to who may have taken the site down or why.

Indianapolis – SAC Keenan provided a quote for a press release from the USAO–Southern District of Indiana about a 70-month sentence for an Indianapolis area man for his role in a years-long fraud conspiracy. The fraud led to the theft of more than $8.4 million from a Pennsylvania-based bank and a Pennsylvania-based insurance company. Keenan: “Even if you use sophisticated means to steal millions of dollars, you are still a thief, and this sentence sends a clear message of the consequences of such greed. The FBI will continue to work with the IRS and other law enforcement partners to focus our efforts on these white-collar criminals and ensure they are brought to justice.”

Jackson – SAC Sutphin provided a quote for the DOJ press release following the sentencing of Wade Walters, the orchestrator of a scheme that defrauded TRICARE out of more than $500 million. Sutphin: “This scheme to defraud TRICARE out of hundreds of millions of dollars not only diverted taxpayer money from essential services and medical care but victimized the brave men and women who selflessly serve or have served our country. The investigation into this specific scheme, which now spans across multiple states and FBI field offices, began in the FBI's Jackson Field Office. I am incredibly proud of the relentless efforts made by our Special Agents, Intelligence Analysts and professional support staff, but also the assistance from our partner agencies which make cases like this successful. The FBI and our law enforcement partners are committed to seeking those that intend to steal from others for their own financial gain."

New Haven – Multiple local news outlets requested on-camera interviews with ASAC Papadacos following the release of a general statement. The statement addressed joint law enforcement preparation efforts leading up to Inauguration day threats. No threats identified at the time of the statement and no on camera interviews.

Newark – WNBC interviewed SAC Crouch about any threats in New Jersey for the upcoming inauguration and what message FBI Newark would like to tell the citizens. Crouch asked that everyone remains vigilant and if they see something, say something. The interview will air this evening.

Omaha – A local talk radio station and the local Fox affiliate requested interviews on domestic terrorism and the standing up of a command post. PAO declined any interviews, but did refer them to the press release the office issued yesterday.

Omaha – A student at Creighton University was hospitalized after trying to make ricin in her dorm room to harm herself. The ABC station asked how the FBI classifies ricin, if it is a terrorist weapon, and if it is used by white supremacists. PAO responded that while ricin is a toxic substance, it is not classified by the FBI. However, the FBI is concerned with its use. As for incidents of when it is used, a diverse array of actors has been involved.

Philadelphia – SAC Driscoll participated in a press conference with Philadelphia's mayor, police commissioner, and district attorney about security planning for the city in the runup to the presidential inauguration. He talked about how we're working closely with our local, state, and federal partners to identify, investigate, and disrupt any potential threats to Philadelphia and the region. He also discussed how FBI Philadelphia is supporting Washington Field's investigation into the Capitol violence, including the arrests this week of two Pennsylvania residents.

Philadelphia – SAC Driscoll provided a quote for a press release from the USAO–Eastern District of Pennsylvania announcing the sentencing of a King of Prussia man for bank fraud and identity theft. Driscoll: "Nasir Outlaw helped lead this sprawling fraud ring, which left a trail of bad checks across the Reading area. He figured it was an easy way to score some fast cash for all involved. With today's sentencing, he's learned the hard way how wrong he was. To anyone else committing bank fraud: get ready to learn the same lesson, courtesy of the FBI and our law enforcement partners."

Sacramento – Capitol Public Radio interviewed SAC Ragan about protecting First Amendment Rights while protecting the community from violence and criminal activity. A statement has also been prepared for release to the media.

Salt Lake City – The local Telemundo channel requested an interview about whether the FBI is profiling any of the groups planning to attend rallies this weekend, particularly the Boogaloo movement. PAO declined the interview request and provided a statement that the FBI focuses solely on criminal activity and not group membership.

Salt Lake City – An Idaho reporter asked if Boise State University cancelled events on campus due to a threat level advisory from the FBI. PAO provided a statement from the NPO-approved talking points that the FBI is not aware of any specific or substantiated threat to the state Capitol. FBI also referred reporter to the BSU for why their events were cancelled.

Seattle – Using the provided talking points, FBI Seattle discussed with the Seattle Times the local perspective related to the Capitol violence on Jan. 6. PAO highlighted the FBI Seattle command post and spotlighted the tipline to help gather information from the public.

Capitol Police intelligence report warned three days before attack that 'Congress itself' could be targeted Supporters of President Trump take over balconies and inauguration scaffolding at the Capitol on Jan. 6. (Matt McClain/The Washington Post)

Carol D. Leonnig

By Jan. 15, 2021 at 7:43 p.m. EST

Three days before thousands of rioters converged on the U.S. Capitol, an internal Capitol Police intelligence report warned of a violent scenario in which "Congress itself" could be the target of angry supporters of President Trump on Jan. 6, laying out a stark alert that deepens questions about the security failures that day.

In a 12-page report on Jan. 3, the intelligence unit of the congressional police force described how thousands of enraged protesters, egged on by Trump and flanked by white supremacists and extreme militia groups, were likely to stream into Washington armed for battle.

This time, the focus of their ire would be members of Congress, the report said.

FBI(21cv558)-6429

"Supporters of the current president see January 6, 2021, as the last opportunity to overturn the results of the presidential election," according to the memo, portions of which were obtained by The Washington Post. "This sense of desperation and disappointment may lead to more of an incentive to become violent. Unlike previous post-election protests, the targets of the pro-Trump supporters are not necessarily the counter-protesters as they were previously, but rather Congress itself is the target on the 6th."

The internal report — which does not appear to have been shared widely with other law enforcement agencies, including the FBI — was among a number of flags that security experts say should have alerted officials to the high security risks on Jan. 6.

A day before the attack, an FBI office in Virginia issued an explicit warning that some extremists were preparing to travel to Washington and threatening to commit violence and "war." And dozens of people on a terrorist watch list were in D.C. that day, including many suspected white supremacists, as The Post previously reported.

On Friday, the inspectors general of four federal agencies announced that they will investigate how security officials prepared for and responded to the pro-Trump rally that preceded the attack on the Capitol.

Inspectors general of several federal agencies open sweeping review of security, intelligence surrounding Capitol attack

Two people familiar with the Capitol Police intelligence memo, who, like others, spoke on the condition of anonymity to describe security preparations, said the report was conveyed to all Capitol Police command staff by the intelligence unit's director, Jack Donohue. Another law enforcement official said the report prompted the Capitol Police chief to seek the emergency activation of the National Guard and led the department to place its perimeter barricades farther from the Capitol than during past events.

Capitol Police spokeswoman Eva Malecki declined to comment on the intelligence report's contents or how it was used to plan security for the protests that day.

Former Capitol Police chief Steven Sund, who resigned in the wake of the siege, said in an interview Friday that it would be inappropriate to publicly discuss an internal intelligence memo, given its sensitive nature and the risk of revealing sources and methods. But he said he was familiar with the department's intelligence reports, which he said guided security planning.

Sund previously told The Post in an interview Sunday that in the days immediately preceding the attack, he grew concerned that additional security measures were needed. He asked top congressional security officials for permission to declare an emergency and activate the National Guard, a request he said they rebuffed.

"We looked at the intelligence," he said. "We knew we would have large crowds, the potential for some violent altercations. I had nothing indicating we would have a large mob seize the Capitol."

Outgoing Capitol Police chief: House, Senate security officials hamstrung efforts to call in National Guard

Nevertheless, the Jan. 3 intelligence report produced by his former agency includes chilling descriptions of the ferocity of the combat that activists appeared to be planning on forums where white supremacists and followers of the alt-right movement gather — presaging the mayhem days later.

The report said organizers were urging Trump supporters to come armed with guns and to bring specialized combat gear — including gas masks and military-style bulletproof vests called “plate carriers” — to Washington on Jan. 6.

The memo concluded that Jan. 6 was shaping up to potentially be a perfect storm of danger because of the size of the expected crowds, the urgency of the group’s mission, the call for demonstrators to bring lethal weapons, the location of the two largest protests in proximity to the Capitol grounds and the fact that “both have been promoted by President Trump himself.”

“The Stop the Steal protest in particular does not have a permit, but several high profile speakers, including Members of Congress are expected to speak at the event,” the document stated. “This combined with Stop the Steal’s propensity to attract white supremacists, militia members and others who actively promote violence, may lead to a significantly dangerous situation for law enforcement and the general public alike.”

Two people familiar with the report said it was not shared widely outside the police force.

An FBI official, speaking on the condition of anonymity because the agency has a policy of not discussing internal intelligence products, said, “At this time, it does not appear such a product was ever shared with the FBI through the normal intelligence sharing channels.”

A D.C. police official did not immediately respond to questions Friday about whether the agency was aware of the report.

On Jan. 4, the day after the intelligence unit shared its warning and conclusions with more than a dozen Capitol Police command staff members, Sund said he asked the Senate and House sergeants at arms for permission to put the National Guard on emergency standby.

Sund said House Sergeant at Arms Paul Irving and Senate Sergeant at Arms Michael Stenger rejected that idea and suggested he instead informally seek out his Guard contacts, asking them to “lean forward” and be on alert in case Capitol Police needed help.

Irving has not responded to requests for comment, and Stenger has declined to comment.

On the day of the attack, Sund said, he urgently renewed the request for emergency National Guard support after a mob broke through the Capitol barricades around 1 p.m. The minutes ticked by as the sergeants at arms sought approval from congressional leadership. The initial wave of the military reinforcements would not arrive for more than four hours — at 5:40 p.m.

The Capitol Police intelligence report was a collaborative product of its intelligence division, led by Donohue, a national expert on the rise of radicalization and violence among extremist groups and domestic terrorists who was recently hired by the department.

Donohue did not respond to requests for comment.

He took over in November as head of the Capitol Police's Intelligence and Information Coordination Division, just as the force was preparing for a string of pro-Trump rallies. He previously worked for five years as a chief at the New York Police Department, helping oversee the force's intelligence bureau, whose detectives and analysts deploy intelligence to disrupt criminal and terrorist plots. After 32 years with the NYPD, Donohue worked briefly as a private consultant.

In July 2020, Donohue testified before the House Homeland Security subcommittee on intelligence and counterterrorism about how social media was being used to radicalize and foment violence in right-wing and left-wing extremist groups. He warned about the increasingly incendiary nature of events billed as free-speech protests and extremists' attempts to harm government officials and police in their calls for insurrection.

When "protesters arrive intent on violence or occupation and are carrying semiautomatic weapons, the stakes grow exponentially," Donohue told the committee, adding, "Law enforcement must remain vigilant in identifying before they act, but the time frame may be remarkably short."

Mary McCord, former acting assistant attorney general for national security, said the lack of more robust security around the Capitol on Jan. 6 has been "a complete mystery to me," but she said the Capitol Police's handling of its own intelligence was even more disturbing.

"It needs to be investigated," said McCord, who is a fellow in a George Washington University program on extremism and a leader of Georgetown's center on constitutional law. "It could be those who received the report were under pressure to handle this a certain way. It could mean that there were inherent biases, where people discounted this, and just didn't think a large group of White conservatives who generally ally with the police and the GOP lawmakers, who were also present there that day, would be violent."

One law enforcement official, who spoke on the condition of anonymity because of the ongoing investigation of the security failures, said the report was viewed internally as predicting something the Capitol Police had already experienced at smaller pro-Trump rallies in November and December: some militia members interspersed among the protesters, and the likelihood of a few violent skirmishes breaking out. It did not signal a thousands-strong army storming the Capitol doors, the official said.

Meanwhile, an FBI internal report prepared the day before the attack by a field office in Norfolk described an online thread indicating that extremists were planning to travel to D.C. for "war."

That document was shared with the field office in Washington, which — within 40 minutes — briefed officials in a command post there set up to respond to possible problems stemming from the rally, said FBI Assistant Director in Charge Steven M. D'Antuono. It was also shared through a Joint Terrorism Task Force that includes representatives from the Capitol Police and other law enforcement agencies, D'Antuono said, though precisely who saw it remains unclear.

Officials said FBI Director Christopher A. Wray and acting attorney general Jeffrey Rosen were not briefed on the document in particular because it was considered a raw intelligence product, and investigators had not identified those responsible for the posts. But, the officials said, Wray was briefed in advance more broadly regarding online chatter about violence, as well as information from the FBI's sources about possible extremists intending to travel to the Capitol.

Officials have said FBI agents visited some of those extremists to discourage them from traveling. But the bureau did not take other steps — such as issuing a formal threat assessment to law enforcement — that might have raised the level of alarm.

FBI officials have said it is difficult to distinguish cheap talk from actual threats online, where the volume of incendiary posts is astronomical. “One of the real challenges in this space is trying to distinguish what’s aspirational vs. what’s intentional,” Wray said at a briefing Thursday.

BLUF: the NYT is likely to run a story this weekend criticizing POTUS and the former AG for stoking fear over ANTIFA, and contributing to the violence of January 6th. OPA expects them to cite DOJ and FBI officials' objections to federal resources being diverted towards it as opposed to focusing on the higher priority, RMVE threat. Additionally, the NYT may posit that the violence of 1/6 is in part due to LEO being "distracted" and "missing" the real threat. The NYT did not ask for a comment from OPA, and at this time OPA does not believe that FBI officials will be named.

Additional background:

- The NYT will likely dedicate specific attention to the amount of federal resources dedicated to combatting violence and criminal activity in Summer 2020.
 - They will probably cite public congressional testimony by the D and other officials that clearly identifies RMVE as the FBI's priority DT threat, and juxtapose that against "resources being surged to protect statues."
 - In particular, they could draw a comparison between "command posts being stood up to protect statues" vs. LEO preparations ahead of and presence on 1/6.
 - While OPA does not think this will be included in the final piece, the NYT did make mention--as a relevant illustration of a misalignment of threat priorities--of a reference the DD made to 9/11 in a Summer 2020 email sent to the field.
- However, they are likely to characterize the activity of Summer 2020 as being directed by the former AG, and note that several DOJ and FBI officials voiced their objections and concern. They could also characterize this as a rare politicization of the national security branches of both DOJ and FBI.
- Re: POTUS, they may cite reports of 1/6 protestors claiming they were fighting against ANTIFA as evidence that POTUS's rhetoric in part fueled the violence seen on 1/6.

Capitol riot investigations 'still in first quarter,' FBI official says

January 15, 2021, 3:39 PM

Federal officials said Friday that the investigations into the U.S. Capitol riot are still in their early stages, and they expect an "exponential" increase in arrests and cases brought forward in the coming days.

Acting U.S. Attorney for D.C. Michael Sherwin said there are currently 275 open investigations related to incidents that took place in and around the Capitol on Jan. 6.

"We anticipate that is going to grow easily past 300, probably by the end of the day, and then exponentially increase into the weekend and next week," Sherwin said in a Friday conference call offering an update on the efforts to arrest and prosecute those involved in the deadly attack.

There have been 98 criminal cases opened as of 8 a.m. Friday. Most of those are federal felony cases, according to Sherwin.

"Initially, we were looking to fix, find and charge the low-hanging fruit — the individuals that we could easily round up and charge. A great bulk of those were misdemeanor cases," Sherwin said. "But as the investigation continues, as the days and weeks progress, we're looking at more significant federal felony charges, and that's exactly what we're doing in partnership with our local and federal partners."

"This is an unprecedented incident," said FBI Assistant Director in Charge Steven D'Antuono. "If this investigation was a football game, we'd still be in the first quarter."

Sherwin pointed to the case of Peter Stager of Arkansas, who has been arrested on charges related to beating a D.C. police officer with a flagpole with an American flag attached to it. He said that's emblematic of the kinds of cases that are being sought going forward.

Some of those who participated in the riots were off-duty law enforcement officers, and Sherwin said that an individual's career would have no impact on how they would be charged.

"We don't care what your profession is, who you are, who you're affiliated with: If you were conducting or engaged in criminal activity, we will charge you and you will be arrested," he said.

Sherwin pointed to the Thursday arrests of two Rocky Mount, Virginia, off-duty police officers who participated in the riots as examples of this policy.

He also highlighted the case of Robert Sanford, a retired Pennsylvania firefighter who has been charged for throwing a fire extinguisher at police officers. Sherwin said this case was "the height of hypocrisy," but noted that this was unrelated to the incident that led the death of Capitol Police officer Brian Sicknick, who was reportedly beaten with a fire extinguisher at the hands of the mob.

Sherwin said a number of people involved in the Capitol riot have turned themselves in.

Court documents filed by prosecutors in the case against Jacob Chansley, who was seen inside the Capitol wearing face paint while shirtless with a furry, horned hat, allege that there was a plan to "capture and assassinate elected officials." But later Friday, Sherwin backed away from those claims, saying that there was no direct evidence of that at the moment, but that there are teams in place working on "more complex cases" related to the invasion of the Capitol.

D'Antuono, with the FBI, said that "enormous progress" has been made into the investigations into the riots, the pipe bombs that were found near the offices of the Republican National Committee and the Democratic National Committee, and Sicknick's killing.

D'Antuono said the FBI has arrested over 40 suspects, and that more than 100 suspects have been taken into custody around the U.S.

One major source of information that law enforcement officials have been able to use has been tips coming in from the public, D'Antuono said. He asked that people continue to reach out and submit tips.

Anyone with information that could assist with the investigations into the riots can call 1-800-CALL-FBI (1-800-225-5324), or submit photo or video evidence online.

"In the past week alone, we have received nearly 140,000 photos and videos from the public," D'Antuono said.

"For those of you who took part in the violence, here's something you should know: Every FBI field office in the country is looking for you," D'Antuono added. "As a matter of fact, even your friends and family are tipping us off. You might want to consider turning yourself in instead of wondering when we're going to come knocking on your door — because we will."

Proud Boys Intended To Kill Mike Pence and Nancy Pelosi, FBI Witness Says

BY AILA SLISCO ON 1/16/21 AT 6:02 PM EST

An FBI witness says that members of the far-right Proud Boys had hoped to assassinate Vice President Mike Pence and Speaker of the House Nancy Pelosi during last week's violent storming of the U.S. Capitol.

An FBI special agent made the claim in an affidavit as part of a criminal complaint against 43-year-old Dominic Pezzola, who is accused of taking part in the riot in support of President Donald Trump's false claims that the presidential election was "stolen." Pezzola, who is also known as "Spaz," allegedly used a shield taken from a Capitol Police officer to smash a Capitol window before entering the building. An FBI witness said that the group Pezzola was with had discussed committing violent acts that went far beyond property damage.

"[The witness] stated that other members of the group talked about things that they had done during the day, and they said that anyone they got their hands on they would have killed, including Nancy Pelosi," the affidavit, which was filed Wednesday, reads. "[The witness] further stated that members of this group, which included 'Spaz,' said that they would have killed [Vice President] Mike Pence if given the chance."

"The group said it would be returning on the '20th,' which your affiant takes to mean the Presidential Inauguration scheduled for January 20, 2021," it continues. "And that they plan to kill every single 'm-fer' they can. [The witness] stated the men said they all had firearms or access to firearms."

Pezzola, of Rochester, New York, was arrested Friday and charged with obstruction of an official proceeding, destruction of government property and unlawfully entering a restricted building or grounds, with the possibility of additional charges to come. He could potentially face 20 years in prison if convicted.

Court documents reference a video of Pezzola and associates after the building was breached. Pezzola is pictured with a cigar celebrating a "victory smoke in the Capitol" while describing the breach as "f*cking awesome." The documents also note that Pezzola describes himself as a "Marine vet / boxer / patriot/ Proud Boy 2nd^o" in a profile on the Telegram messaging app.

BLUF: the NYT is likely to run a story this weekend criticizing POTUS and the former AG for stoking fear over ANTIFA, and contributing to the violence of January 6th. OPA expects them to cite DOJ and FBI officials' objections to federal resources being diverted towards it as opposed to focusing on the higher priority, RMVE threat. Additionally, the NYT may posit that the violence of 1/6 is in part due to LEO being "distracted" and "missing" the real threat. The NYT did not ask for a comment from OPA, and at this time OPA does not believe that FBI officials will be named.

Additional background:

- The NYT will likely dedicate specific attention to the amount of federal resources dedicated to combatting violence and criminal activity in Summer 2020.
 - They will probably cite public congressional testimony by the D and other officials that clearly identifies RMVE as the FBI's priority DT threat, and juxtapose that against "resources being surged to protect statues."
 - In particular, they could draw a comparison between "command posts being stood up to protect statues" vs. LEO preparations ahead of and presence on 1/6.
 - While OPA does not think this will be included in the final piece, the NYT did make mention—as a relevant illustration of a misalignment of threat priorities—of a reference the DD made to 9/11 in a Summer 2020 email sent to the field.
- However, they are likely to characterize the activity of Summer 2020 as being directed by the former AG, and note that several DOJ and FBI officials voiced their objections and concern. They could also characterize this as a rare politicization of the national security branches of both DOJ and FBI.
- Re: POTUS, they may cite reports of 1/6 protestors claiming they were fighting against ANTIFA as evidence that POTUS's rhetoric in part fueled the violence seen on 1/6.

Hi [redacted]

In the course of getting a response together from CIRG and CTD today for HPSCI, we were told about a threat report against the Capitol tomorrow. [redacted] CTD's exec staff indicated that [redacted] I'm double checking that, and also wanted to know if notice was given to Congressional leadership. I don't know what the tripwires are for notification to leadership, though.

OCA is trying to stay ahead of any issues/requests from the Hill, so if leadership is made aware of the threat, could we get a heads-up?

Thanks!

TFO' [REDACTED]

Good afternoon, I have received a request from a HPSCI Staff member regarding a matter of high interest to the Committee, especially in light of recent press reporting suggesting that individuals, possibly with links to violent extremist groups, may be involved with violence or criminal activity in the vicinity of the U.S. Capitol or in relation to the event tomorrow (01/06/2021). I am checking with our units here at FBIHQ. If I receive any positive intelligence. I will advise you.

However, I am checking to see if your department or WFO has any intelligence on the subject?

If needed I can cut some of the FBI internal info out and push to our command later, but for now, wanted the TFOs to have awareness first.

(U//FOUO) The following list of events is being maintained per request of WFO Executive Management. The items on this list are compiled by FBI partner agencies. FBI WFO does not have any information to suggest these events will involve anything other than first amendment protected activity and is being distributed for situational awareness. Their inclusion here is not intended to associate the protected activity with criminality or a threat to national security, or to infer that such protected activity itself violates federal law.

In the event no violent reaction occurs, FBI policy and federal law dictates that no further record be made of the protected activity.

Good afternoon, I have received a request from a HPSCI Staff member regarding a matter of high interest to the Committee, especially in light of recent press reporting suggesting that individuals, possibly with links to violent extremist groups, may be involved with violence or criminal activity in the vicinity of the U.S. Capitol or in relation to the event tomorrow (01/06/2021). I am checking with our units here at FBIHQ. If I receive any positive intelligence, I will advise you.

However, I am checking to see if your department or WFO has any intelligence on the subject?

USCP recovered two firearms on Coffman's person and arrested him on weapons violations. A safety search of the vehicle by USCP revealed a cooler with 11 mason jars filled with an unknown liquid; a pistol, rifle, M4, machetes, crossbow, and various types of ammunition; and rags. USCP bomb techs on the scene believed the mason jars and rags were components for Molotov cocktails. Coffman later informed FBI personnel on scene that the mason jars were filled with a mixture of melted Styrofoam and gasoline. FBI ERT and HERT remain on scene processing the truck and weapons. Conservatives fear Trump's plot to overturn loss will 'imperil the electoral college'

Rep. Chip Roy (R-Tex.) was Sen. Ted Cruz's chief of staff before winning a House seat in 2018. This week, he has emerged as a leader of the conservatives who are fighting back against an effort to block the certification of President-elect Joe Biden's victory – spearheaded in the Senate by his former boss – that they see as a radical, cynical and myopic.

Roy, a member of the House Freedom Caucus, persuaded six of the most committed conservatives in the House to sign onto a statement he drafted Sunday that makes a blunt case for counting all the electors submitted by the states. The centerpiece of his argument is that failing to do so will create dangerous precedents and open a Pandora's box that would eventually doom the electoral college.

"From a purely partisan perspective, Republican presidential candidates have won the national popular vote only once in the last 32 years,” Roy wrote in his statement. “They have therefore depended on the electoral college for nearly all presidential victories in the last generation. If we perpetuate the notion that Congress may disregard certified electoral votes — based solely on its own assessment that one or more states mishandled the presidential election — we will be delegitimizing the very system that led Donald Trump to victory in 2016, and that could provide the only path to victory in 2024.”

Rep. Chip Roy (R-Tex.) challenges the seating of lawmakers from Arizona, Georgia, Michigan, Nevada, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin during the opening session of the 117th Congress on Sunday. (Bill Clark/Pool/Reuters)

The other signatories are Reps. Kelly Armstrong (R-N.D.), Ken Buck (R-Colo.), Mike Gallagher (R-Wis.), Nancy Mace (R-S.C.), Thomas Massie (R-Ky.) and Tom McClintock (R-Calif.).

Sen. Tom Cotton (R-Ark.) has also emphasized the imperative for Republicans to safeguard the sanctity of the electoral college in opposing Cruz and Co. “Congress would imperil the Electoral College, which gives small states like Arkansas a voice in presidential elections,” he said in a statement. “Democrats could achieve their long-standing goal of eliminating the Electoral College in effect by refusing to count electoral votes in the future for a Republican president-elect.”

Sen. Mike Lee (R-Utah) forwarded Roy’s statement to the Senate Republican Conference. “With respect to presidential elections, there is no authority for Congress to make value judgments in the abstract regarding any state’s election laws or the manner in which they have been implemented,” Lee emailed his colleagues on Monday.

This message was seen as giving cover to other Republicans because Lee, whose father was President Ronald Reagan’s solicitor general, helped devise President Trump’s impeachment defense strategy in the Senate last year. Lee even appeared at Trump’s rally in Georgia on Monday night, where he was chastised by the president for not trying to overturn the election results.

Speaking at Trump’s Georgia rally, Kelly Loeffler — whose name appears on the ballot in today’s runoff — became the 13th GOP senator to publicly announce that she will oppose certifying Biden’s victory. She declared that she is going to try to get the legally certified electoral votes from her own state thrown out, as opposed to letting them be counted for Biden. The effort will fail. But it is notable that Loeffler is willing to effectively disenfranchise the 10.62 million people she is supposed to represent – since she has tied her political fortunes entirely to the lame-duck Trump.

In this vein, Roy did something else clever on Sunday evening as the new Congress was sworn in. To make a point, he objected to the swearing-in of all members from the six states where Trump falsely claims the vote was rigged. This forced the House to vote on whether the lawmakers who were on the same ballot with the president – and won their races – should be allowed to take the oath. Naturally, Republicans wanted to seat their members from Georgia, Arizona, Michigan, Nevada, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. The vote was 371 to 2 to say that all of their elections were legitimate.

“It would confound reason if the presidential results of these states were to face objection while the congressional results of the same process escaped public scrutiny,” Roy said. “Those representatives were elected through the very same systems – with the same ballot procedures, with the same signature validations, with the same broadly applied decisions of executive and judicial branch officials – as were the electors chosen for the president of the United States under the laws of those states.”

“On a conference call last Thursday, Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell told his caucus that, in his 36 Senate years, he has twice cast votes to take the nation to war and once to remove a president, but that the vote he will cast this Wednesday to certify [Biden’s victory] will be the most important of his career,” legendary conservative columnist George Will reports. “The day before McConnell’s somber statement, Missouri’s freshman Republican senator, Josh Hawley, announced that on Wednesday, 14 days before Biden will be inaugurated, he will challenge the validity of Biden’s election. Hawley’s conscience regarding electoral proprieties compels him to stroke this erogenous zone of the GOP’s 2024 presidential nominating electorate. ...

“Hawley — has there ever been such a high ratio of ambition to accomplishment? — and Cruz have already nimbly begun to monetize their high-mindedness through fundraising appeals,” Will continues. “On Wednesday, the members of the Hawley-Cruz cohort will violate the oath of office in which they swore to defend the Constitution from enemies ‘foreign and domestic.’ They are its most dangerous domestic enemies.”

Tune in for our live special report on the Georgia runoffs.

I will join Libby Casey in The Post's newsroom tonight from 7 p.m. Eastern until midnight to analyze and assess returns as they come in from the Peach State. Senate control for the next two years is on the line. Watch our livestream free on YouTube.

The Washington Post names Olivier Knox as my replacement.

After 5 1/2 years, I will hand over the reins of The Daily 202 later this month to Olivier Knox, a veteran political reporter and broadcast journalist, to start my next job as a columnist for the Opinions section. Knox has covered every presidential campaign and administration in the last 20 years. He joins The Post from SiriusXM, where he was chief Washington correspondent and hosted a live, three-hour show each weeknight focused on politics, foreign policy, and the federal government. Before that, he reported for Yahoo News and hosted a weekly Yahoo-branded radio show. Knox got his start as a reporter at Agence France-Presse, for which he covered eight years of the George W. Bush administration. He served as president of the White House Correspondents' Association from July 2018 to July 2019.

Olivier received his B.A. in political science from Columbia University and a master's in Latin American studies and International Economics from the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies. He split his time between Vermont and Paris during his childhood and is a native French speaker and fluent in Spanish. He lives in Bethesda with his wife and son.

More on the voting wars

More Republicans criticize Trump's attempt to pressure Georgia election officials.

"Trump is effectively sabotaging the Republican Party on his way out of office, obsessed with overturning his election loss and nursing pangs of betrayal from allies whom he had expected to bend the instruments of democracy to his will," Philip Rucker, Ashley Parker, Josh Dawsey and Seung Min Kim report. "Trump has created a divide in his party as fundamental and impassioned as any during his four years as president ... Rep. Liz Cheney (Wyo.), the No. 3 House Republican, said the call was 'deeply troubling' and urged all Americans to listen to the hour-long conversation, while Sen. Patrick J. Toomey (R-Pa.) condemned it as 'a new low in this whole futile and sorry episode.' Even one of Trump's most loyal defenders, Sen. Marsha Blackburn (R-Tenn.), said it was 'not a helpful call.' ...

"The president is trying to mobilize a show of strength that could intimidate lawmakers who certify the result, exhorting his supporters to travel to Washington for mass protests Wednesday. He is planning to speak to the crowd on the Ellipse around midday Wednesday ... Trump is befuddled as to why many more Republicans are not falling in line with him, advisers said. ... Still, Trump is not entirely blind to reality. He has asked several advisers in recent weeks for advice on what he should do instead of attending [Biden's] inauguration on Jan. 20."

At a rally for the Senate candidates last night in Dalton, Ga., Trump opened by declaring that there's no way he lost the state: "The president also falsely said he had won reelection 'in a landslide' and suggested that he expects Vice President Pence to make it so when he fulfills his constitutional duty to preside over Wednesday's joint session ... Trump has complained that he does not think he will get credit if [David] Perdue and Loeffler win but will be blamed if they lose ... Trump became the first Republican presidential candidate to lose Georgia in three decades. ... 'Honestly, I think that he cannot handle being the sitting Republican president that lost Georgia,' said a GOP official in frequent touch with the White House. ... Georgia's voting systems manager, Gabriel Sterling, refuted Trump's voter fraud claims point by point at a news conference Monday in Atlanta. 'This is all easily, provably false, yet the president persists,' Sterling said."

Trump tried to reach Georgia Secretary of State Brad Raffensperger (R) at least 18 times before Saturday's call, but the calls were patched to interns in the press office who thought it was a prank and didn't realize it was actually the president on the line, according to Raffensperger's deputy. White House Chief of Staff Mark Meadows arranged Saturday's conversation after collecting all the participants' cellphone numbers and connecting them directly.

Quote of the day

"The divide in the party is whether it's appropriate to pull the pin on an electoral college grenade, hoping that there are enough responsible people standing around who can shove it back in before they detonate American democracy," said Republican operative Josh Holmes.

an outside adviser to McConnell and his former chief of staff.

Throughout the call, Trump displayed an extraordinary degree of reliance on lawyer Cleta Mitchell.

Mitchell has stayed out of the spotlight, even as her behind-the-scenes role escalated. Her role as a Trump legal adviser has surprised some colleagues, particularly because she is a partner at a major law firm, Foley & Lardner, that immediately faced questions about whether it endorsed such work. "In a statement Monday, the firm said it was 'aware of, and are concerned by, Ms. Mitchell's participation in the January 2 conference call and are working to understand her involvement more thoroughly.' The firm noted as a matter of policy, its attorneys do not represent 'any parties seeking to contest the results of the presidential election,' although it did allow attorneys to observe recounts voluntarily as private citizens," Michael Kranish and Tom Hamburger report.

"Mitchell, 70, began her political career as a Democrat, helping win passage of Oklahoma's Equal Rights Amendment for women ... Mitchell, then known by her maiden name of Deatherage, married Duane Draper, a fellow Oklahoman, and divorced in 1982. He later came out as a gay man, became director of the Massachusetts AIDS policy office and died in 1991; he had the disease when he died. Mitchell married her second husband, Dale Mitchell, chairman of the board of Fidelity National Bank, in 1984, taking his last name. ... Two years later, she ran unsuccessfully for lieutenant governor in the Democratic primary. In 1992, Dale Mitchell was convicted of bank fraud, an experience that Cleta Mitchell later said was the result of 'overreaching government regulation.' She became increasingly disenchanted with the social liberal policies she had supported and moved to Washington to become director of the Term Limits Institute." Then she started doing legal work for the Republican Party and the National Rifle Association.

A Trump-appointed U.S. attorney in Georgia abruptly resigns, raising suspicions of untoward pressure.

The top federal prosecutor in Atlanta left his position on Monday without warning. In the call with Raffensperger, Trump referred to him angrily as the "Never Trumper U.S. attorney" in Atlanta as he complained that criminal charges were not being pursued over what the president claims, without evidence, is voter fraud. "Byung J. 'BJay' Pak, who was appointed by Trump, announced his resignation as U.S. attorney for the Northern District of Georgia in a news release. The statement did not say why Pak was leaving or what he plans to do next," the AP reports. "Pak was a Republican state lawmaker from 2011 to 2017, had previously served as an assistant U.S. attorney from 2002 to 2008 and was working in private practice at the time of his appointment. ... A Justice Department spokesman did not immediately respond Monday to questions about what sparked Pak's sudden resignation or whether acting Attorney General Jeffrey Rosen had sought the departure. Pak's resignation comes nearly a month after the departure of Charlie Peeler, who was appointed by Trump in 2017 to serve as U.S. attorney for the Macon-based Middle District of Georgia. Peeler resigned on Dec. 11.”

- Dominion Voting System plans to sue Sidney Powell, another lawyer giving advice to Trump, for defamation. The company, which made the voting machine used in Georgia and elsewhere, is also pushing a similar suit against Trump himself, CEO John Poulos told Axios.
- Pence and Trump were expected to hear a last-minute pitch from John Eastman, a Trump lawyer, after they returned from Georgia last night. The president has directly pressed his running mate to find alternatives to certifying Biden’s win, including preventing him from receiving 270 electoral votes and trying to force the election be thrown to the House, the Times reports. Pence actually has no unilateral power to affect the election’s outcome. Trump and his staff have also floated the idea of delaying Biden’s inauguration, even though it is set in stone by the Constitution, per the NYT.
- Almost 200 of the nation’s top business leaders urged Congress to certify Biden’s win in a letter, arguing “attempts to thwart or delay this process run counter to the essential tenets of our democracy.” Signers included leaders of Goldman Sachs, Microsoft, Pfizer, the NBA, Mastercard, Blackstone Group, Condé Nast, Price Waterhouse Cooper and Deutsche Bank. (Dawsey)
- Trump made at least 29,508 verifiably false or misleading claims between taking office and Nov. 5. Glenn Kessler, our chief fact checker, said it’s been difficult for his staff to keep up because Trump is peddling more falsehoods than ever.

Biden and Pence also campaigned in Georgia on Monday.

Pence’s event “was interrupted by someone who shouted a demand that Pence overturn the presidential election results,” Cleve Wootson, Michael Scherer, David Weigel and Reis Thebault report. Biden “turned Trump’s efforts to overturn the November election results into a rallying cry to drive Democrats to the polls on Tuesday ... At the final public rallies for Loeffler, her loudest applause came not when discussing her background in business, or the ‘radical liberal’ agendas of the Democrats, but when discussing Republican challenges to the Nov. 3 vote. ... The Democratic candidates spent the closing days of the race trying to refocus the campaign on more local concerns such as health care and jobs, even as they brought in star power to help seal the deal and continued to jab at Trump. A closing ad for [Jon] Ossoff featured narration by former president Barack Obama and a musical appearance by John Legend. ... Democrats, who have long considered themselves underdogs in the runoff contests, have been cheered by early vote numbers and clear signs in the state that many core Democratic constituencies, including suburban and urban voters, remained engaged.”

The Georgia runoff has an explicitly racist history. In an hour-long special episode of the excellent Post Reports podcasts, our colleagues Martine Powers and Ted Muldoon report the runoff system was conceived in the 1960s by a staunch segregationist who proclaimed that runoffs would “prevent the Negro bloc vote from controlling the elections.” You can find a full transcript of their report here, but the part about the Jim Crow origins of the runoff system starts at about the 26-minute mark. Essentially, the Georgia system was invented to subvert the mandates of the Voting Rights Act and ensure White candidates for statewide offices would always have an edge. Even now, the runoff system essentially serves to ensure many votes from Black, Brown, rural, and low-income people don't ultimately get counted. It's a fascinating, albeit depressing, story.

- A new Facebook ad from Loeffler's campaign artificially darkens the skin of her Black opponent, Raphael Warnock. In fact, the campaign issued two different ads — one in which Warnock's skin didn't appear digitally altered — and spent 10 times as much money pushing the one where he appeared darker. (Salon)
- Thousands of Atlanta ballots are at risk of not getting counted because of Atlanta-area USPS delays, which Postmaster Louis DeJoy had promised would improve following last summer's national slowdown. A court filing shows the agency is processing only 3 in 4 ballots on time in the metro area. (NBC LX)

D.C. is calling in the National Guard to prepare for pro-Trump protests.

"The District has mobilized the National Guard and will have every city police officer on duty Tuesday and Wednesday to handle protests of the November presidential election, which Mayor Muriel E. Bowser said may include people looking to instigate violence," Julie Zauzmer, Marissa Lang and Dan Lamothe report. "Bowser (D) has asked D.C. residents to stay away from downtown Washington on both days while members of far-right groups, including the Proud Boys, amass to falsely claim Trump was reelected. ... The National Park Service on Monday night updated the crowd estimate on the permit for [the event on the Ellipse that Trump plans to address] to 30,000 people, up from 5,000. ... Members of right-wing groups have taken to social media sites such as Parler and Telegram to discuss how to bring guns into the District despite laws banning open carry throughout the city and prohibiting guns on federal lands such as the Mall and Freedom Plaza or anywhere within 1,000 feet of a protest."

The leader of the Proud Boys, Enrique Tarrio, was arrested by D.C. police for burning a Black Lives Matter banner taken from a historic Black church during a demonstration last month. Police stopped a vehicle Tarrio had been in shortly after it entered the District. It is believed Tarrio, who lives in Miami, was coming into D.C. from the airport. A D.C. police spokesman said Tarrio is charged with one misdemeanor count of destruction of property and two felony counts of possession of high-capacity ammunition feeding devices, which were found during the arrest. Tarrio told The Post last month he was among those who burned the banner. (Peter Hermann and Martin Weil)

In a viral web video, a new lawmaker vows to carry her Glock around D.C. Rep. Lauren Boebert (R-Colo.) is seen strapping the Glock to her hip before appearing to embark on a walk around Capitol Hill. "A spokesman for Boebert said she was not carrying the gun throughout the video shoot, despite the opening scene. D.C. gun laws do not recognize concealed-carry licenses from other states, and nonresidents must register firearms with D.C. police," Meagan Flynn reports. "Asked about the ad on Monday, acting D.C. police chief Robert J. Contee III said Boebert would have to follow applicable laws if she wanted to carry a firearm on city streets, and would be subjected to the same penalties as anyone else if she does not.”

The coronavirus rages on

A covid patient is treated in an intensive care unit at Providence Holy Cross Medical Center in Los Angeles. (Jim C. Hong/AP)

The U.S. is shattering hospitalization records.

“The United States again set a record for coronavirus-hospitalizations on Monday, with over 128,000 people receiving inpatient treatment nationwide, according to data tracked by The Washington Post. That figure represents an increase of more than 2,800 patients from the previous day,” Antonia Farzan reports. “The largest jump was reported in California, where more than 22,000 patients were hospitalized with covid-19 as of Monday, more than any other state. Highlighting the dire toll that the surge is taking, ambulance crews in hard-hit Los Angeles County were told Monday to ration their use of oxygen due to widespread shortages at hospitals. Ambulances have also been directed not to bring patients to the hospital if they have effectively no chance of survival. ... Adjusted for population, Arizona, Nevada and Alabama saw the most patients hospitalized with covid-19 on Monday, followed by California.”

U.S. health officials plan on sticking to a two-dose vaccine regimen.

“The U.S. government’s top infectious-disease doctor, a leading drug regulator and the Health and Human Services secretary are dismissing suggestions that the second shot of authorized coronavirus vaccines could be delayed to make more doses available faster to more people,” Carolyn Johnson reports. “In recent days, some public health experts have debated whether it is worth taking a scientific gamble by altering the two-dose regimen that proved highly effective in trials to maximize the number of people partially protected with at least one shot as the pandemic surges. The debate is playing out as the United States struggles with administering the doses it already has. More than 15 million doses of vaccine have been distributed, according to Centers for Disease Control and Prevention data updated Monday morning, but only about 4.5 million have been administered. ... Last week, the United Kingdom made the controversial decision to prioritize giving a first dose of its authorized vaccines — even if it meant there wasn’t enough to give people a booster shot within the recommended three to four weeks. U.K. authorities have said people could wait as long as 12 weeks. Limited data suggests a single shot affords some protection against disease, but it is not known how complete or long the protection lasts.”

Vaccinations are off to a sluggish start across the D.C. region. In Maryland, less than one-quarter of the state's initial batch of 273,875 vaccines has been used. In Virginia, it's only one-fifth of the state's allotment of 451,075 doses. In D.C., the number stands at about 17,000 of 40,075 delivered doses. In one D.C. case, two men who are not in priority to receive the vaccine were given their shots after first responders missed their appointments for a vaccination at a Giant Foods supermarket. A pharmacist approached the two men and asked if they wanted to get the Moderna shots since the product would go bad if it wasn't used immediately. (Greg Schneider, Michael Brice-Saddler and Erin Cox)

- After a freezer broke, a Northern California hospital gave out 600 shots of the Moderna vaccine in the two hours before they would no longer be viable. (Los Angeles Times)
- Police said Steven Brandenburg, the Wisconsin pharmacist who tried to ruin hundreds of vaccine doses, was convinced the shots would mutate people's DNA. Brandenburg is waiting for charges after he let spoil 57 vials of the Moderna vaccine, which officials said contained enough doses to inoculate more than 500 people. (AP)
- There is compelling evidence that covid will have long-term effects on the brains and nervous systems of survivors as they age, and researchers announced a large international study to investigate the correlation between the coronavirus and cognitive decline, Alzheimer's disease and other dementia in later life. - The pulse oximeters that clip onto a fingertip and pass red and infrared light through the skin to gauge blood oxygen levels are far less reliable in Black than White patients. Because the tools were mostly tested on Whites when they were first developed, they are calibrated for people with light skin. (Reuters)

Britain is going into a third lockdown.

"Prime Minister Boris Johnson on Monday ordered a third national lockdown for England amid a surging coronavirus outbreak driven by a U.K. variant that appears to be more contagious and may have greater implications for children," Karla Adam, Jennifer Hassan and Guarino report. "In a televised address to the nation Monday evening, Johnson said the new variant was 50 to 70 percent more transmissible, spreading at a rate he called 'frustrating and alarming.' ... The number of patients in London hospitals has more than doubled over the past two weeks. ... Under the new lockdown, everyone in England will be asked to stay at home except in special circumstances. Schools and universities will close for in-class learning with immediate effect."

- Community spread of the highly contagious strain has now been documented in New York. State officials detected the case in a man who had not traveled. He is associated with a jewelry shop in Saratoga Springs. (WSJ)
- The TSA screened more than 1.3 million people Sunday, the most since the pandemic began. (Lori Aratani)
- The Chinese government placed Xiaoguoizhuang, a village in the Hebei province that neighbors Beijing, under lockdown after detecting a new cluster of cases connected to recently held weddings.

(Lily Kuo)

- Authorities in Egypt are investigating the deaths of four covid patients at a public hospital, following a social media furor over unverified claims that all patients in the ICU died when oxygen supplies ran out. (Farzan)
- France is expanding the number of people who are eligible to get vaccinated following criticism for its slow rollout. Only 500 people in France have received the vaccine, compared to 200,000 in Germany during the same period. (Farzan)
- Police in Scotland arrested a member of Parliament who traveled from London to her home in Glasgow by train after testing positive – a journey that typically takes about five hours. She has ignored calls to resign. (Farzan)

The shift to online learning has widened achievement gaps in U.S. education.

The pandemic has driven “drops in attendance, college applications and academic performance among the nation’s most vulnerable students: children who are low-income, Black or Hispanic, as well as those with learning disabilities and those whose first language is not English. All too often, homeless children — of whom there are 2.5 million every year in America — combine these factors,” Hannah Natanson reports. “Trying to learn inside shelters for the past nine months, students have faced spotty WiFi, crowded rooms, high noise levels and harassment from some peers who deduce, over Zoom, that they lack a home. ... School officials in Northern Virginia, and nationwide, have gone to great lengths to reach vulnerable, struggling and low-income children. They have expanded Internet into school parking lots, provided families with WiFi hotspots and hand-delivered needed devices to households, including Chromebooks and iPads. ... But homeless children pose a unique challenge. Their parents are sometimes unwilling or unable to communicate their circumstances. Some shelters, for example those catering to victims of abuse, take pains to hide their location. So, if a homeless child drops off the screen, it can prove impossible to track them.”

Months later, more than 1 million Americans are still waiting for unemployment aid.

“The Post’s calculation reflects 703,000 pending appeals across the country and 529,000 people waiting on a benefits decision in the states that publicly share that information or that responded to a request for comment,” Alyssa Fowers and Heather Long report. “People’s claims have been held up for months at times for something as simple as a typo or uploading a scan of a driver’s license instead of a photo. Most delays are the result of three key factors: extensive fraud prevention checks, antiquated computer systems and applications being flagged for extra scrutiny. Claims set aside for manual review often take months to resolve. The holdup in sending out unemployment aid has caused families to fall severely behind on rent, cancel medical treatments and struggle to buy food, according to interviews with more than a dozen people who have yet to receive any money despite applying for unemployment in the spring or summer.”

The lame-duck agenda

USPS delays threaten small-town newspapers.

“The U.S. Postal Service has been under siege for months as record volumes of holiday packages and election mail ran up against a spike in coronavirus cases within its workforce, leaving the agency severely short-staffed. Nearly 19,000 workers were in quarantine at the end of 2020 after becoming infected or exposed to the virus,” Jacob Bogage reports. “That has left hundreds of small publishers struggling to deliver their products, according to the National Newspaper Association, undercutting their advertising revenues and subscriber bases, and depriving the largely rural communities they serve of crucial news coverage. Some news operations have even called on reporters and editors to deliver papers. They’re also staring down rate increases of as much as 9 percent in 2022 and for years thereafter. Mail service is already one of their biggest costs, industry insiders say, and such a scenario could force hundreds of small publications out of business given their already bite-size margins.”

The EPA finalizes a rule to limit the science behind public health safeguards.

“The Environmental Protection Agency has finalized a rule to limit what research it can use to craft public health protections, a move opponents argue is aimed at crippling the agency’s ability to more aggressively regulate the nation’s air and water,” Juliet Elserin and Brady Dennis report. “The ‘Strengthening Transparency in Regulatory Science’ rule, which the administration began pursuing early in Trump’s term, would require researchers to disclose the raw data involved in their public health studies before the agency could rely upon their conclusions. It will apply this new set of standards to ‘dose-response studies,’ which evaluate how much a person’s exposure to a substance increases the risk of harm. ... Many of the nation’s leading researchers and academic organizations, however, argue that the criteria will actually restrict the EPA from using some of the most consequential research on human subjects because it often includes confidential medical records and other proprietary data that cannot be released due to privacy concerns.”

EPA Administrator Andrew Wheeler — a former lobbyist for the coal, chemical and uranium industries — will announce the final rule at a virtual session hosted today by the Competitive Enterprise Institute. That think tank disputes the idea that climate change poses a major threat. Although Biden will probably seek to overturn this, such an effort will take months, if not longer.

A lawyer for Paul Manafort says a bid to revive a fraud case against him is “unsupportable.”

“Manhattan’s district attorney, Cyrus R. Vance Jr., has signaled that his 16-count indictment is intended to ensure Manafort is held accountable for his crimes regardless of the presidential pardon he received late last month,” Shayna Jacobs reports. “Vance brought his case against Manafort in March 2019. New York Supreme Court Justice Maxwell Wiley dismissed it later that year, saying the charges too closely overlapped with the federal conviction. The dismissal was upheld in October by a state appeals court, a decision Vance now hopes the New York Court of Appeals will agree to review. Manafort’s lawyer, Todd Blanche, wrote in Monday’s letter to New York’s top judge that the state court charges dismissed more than a year ago ‘allege the exact same fraud, causing the exact same harm.’”

A Florida state representative wants Mar-a-Lago shut down for violating coronavirus safety restrictions.

“Social media posts from the New Year’s Eve event show a crowd of maskless revelers, including Trump attorney Rudolph W. Giuliani and Donald Trump Jr., dancing and listening to bands in the Donald J. Trump Grand Ballroom at the club,” Lori Rozsa reports. “Palm Beach County officials said Monday they were reviewing the complaint from state Rep. Omari Hardy, a Democrat from nearby Lake Worth Beach. ... The county mask ordinance mandates facial coverings for anyone ‘visiting or working in any business or establishment, including entering, exiting, and otherwise moving around within the establishment.’”

Good Afternoon Everyone,

Below is an email I received regarding the upcoming demonstrations. There is a comprehensive list /map of street restrictions (pretty much all of downtown) in effect Tuesday, January 5 @ 12:01a.m. through Wednesday, January 6 @ 11:59 p.m. I have also printed out and hung a map in [REDACTED] as you exit and on the front door of [REDACTED]

Thank you and Stay Safe,

Subject: [EXTERNAL EMAIL] - Mayor Bowser Continues Preparation for Upcoming First Amendment Demonstrations

b6 -1
b7E -3,5

This is an important message from the District of Columbia AlertDC system.

Mayor Bowser is continuing preparations for this week's First Amendment activities. She had previously directed the DC Homeland Security and Emergency Management Agency (HSEMA) to stand up the District's Emergency Operations Center (EOC) beginning Monday, January 4, to coordinate the response for the upcoming First Amendment demonstrations, permitted by the National Park Service, scheduled for January 5 and January 6. The EOC serves as the coordination hub between District agencies and regional and federal partners. On Tuesday, the Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) begins its full activation with all staff reporting for response on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mayor Bowser instructed District agencies to create a comprehensive public safety response to ensure residents' safety. Additionally, HSEMA and MPD are conducting event overviews for the Council of the District of Columbia, faith leaders, and the downtown business community. Residents are encouraged to report suspicious activity by making a report through iwatchdc.org or by calling 911 for immediate threats or emergencies.

"MPD and HSEMA are coordinating among District agencies and with federal authorities to ensure our residents and businesses remain safe," said Mayor Muriel Bowser. "I am asking Washingtonians and those who live in the region to stay out of the downtown area on Tuesday and Wednesday and not to engage with demonstrators who come to our city seeking confrontation, and we will do what we must to ensure all who attend remain peaceful."

Members of the public and anyone attending the events are reminded that District law prohibits anyone from carrying a firearm within 1,000 feet of any First Amendment activity. Under federal law, it is illegal to possess firearms on the U.S. Capitol grounds and on National Park Service areas, such as Freedom Plaza, the Ellipse, and the National Mall. Additionally, members of the public are reminded that the District of Columbia does not have reciprocity with other states' concealed pistol licenses; unless a person has been issued a concealed pistol license by the District of Columbia, they cannot conceal carry a firearm in the city. Finally, it is illegal to open carry firearms in the District.

Residents and commuters are encouraged to register for important alerts from the District by signing up for AlertDC at alertdc.dc.gov.

A comprehensive list of traffic adjustments and street closures in effect Tuesday, January 5, and Wednesday, January 6 can be found at <https://npsdc.dc.gov/release/traffic-advisory-first-amendment-activity-jan5>.

While the Metropolitan Police Department does not anticipate additional street closures on Tuesday, January 5, 2021 and Wednesday, January 6, 2021, there is the potential for intermittent closures in the downtown area. Additionally, while the Metropolitan Police Department does not anticipate street closures on Thursday, January 7, 2021, there is the potential for intermittent closures in the downtown area. Any decision to close a street will be based upon public safety. For timely traffic information, visit: twitter.com/DCPoliceTraffic.

The public should expect parking restrictions along the street and should be guided by the posted emergency no parking signage. All vehicles that are parked in violation of the emergency no parking signs will be ticketed and towed.

Motorists could encounter possible delays if operating in the vicinity of downtown area and may wish to consider alternative routes. The Metropolitan Police Department and the District Department of Transportation also wishes to remind motorists in the vicinity of this event to proceed with caution as increased pedestrian traffic can be anticipated.

I want to thank you all for the resources you have dedicated to assisting CTD with the Capitol siege and threats leading up to the Inauguration. I know you all have your own priorities, threats, and resource limitations, and despite that you still offered SSAs, IAs and MAPAs, as well as their time and expertise. The support your Divisions provided to CTD have made a significant contribution [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] which not only has assisted our investigations, but supplemented the CTD workforce, preventing them from burning out. CTD is extremely grateful and I will be happy to return the favor in the future!

Folks,

For those who have tried getting to Hoover and other offices in DC, you know the struggle. Through the 20th, please ensure [REDACTED] but if there is an onslaught of FBI personnel trying to navigate the lone entry into the safe zone on Tuesday, it could be a long commute for many who need to be here such as CP personnel. Again, I know most of you are aware, but I would recommend your folks, [REDACTED]

Thank you and hope everyone can enjoy some of their weekend.

Thank you.

Good morning. The A/AG has requested several pieces of data about FBI's response to the Capitol. He is looking for the following: [REDACTED] round-up below is what my people were able to cobble together overnight, but it is missing a lot of detail. Is this something you can get or have one of the other EADs (or whoever you think is the best person) get for us? The A/AG would like something this morning.

Thank you,
