 reason why you're not producing the original. I think that rule goes back centuries to when we didn't have photocopiers, digital reproduction. We had scribblers so they can make errors. That's why you wanted the original but the rule still exist but that's its limitation. It is not some sort of catch all, well, we think they could have introduced better evidence so this isn't the best evidence. No. I would say there is no general prohibition on introducing evidence that may not be the best. You could have trials on what's the best evidence, trials within trials. So, I reject that particular assertion. I see no reason not to allow these two purported experts to testify subject to objections on the particular MR. WALLACE: May I just offer one correction, Your Honor. One is a fact witness, that's Mr. Sneddon. And one 	ProceedingsPage 641have this surprised witness that we could have called2earlier. So it would be limited to rebutting but go ahea3MR. KISE: The same is true of Professor Lewis.4the Court is going to ignore the Black Letter Law and allow5Professor Lewis to testify under these circumstances when6he clearly is their expert, should have been called, could7have been called and should have been called in their8case-in-chief to present affirmative evidence, evidence the9we're not able to meet now because our experts can't testified10about what they think Lewis is going to say on the stand of11any other expert that hasn't testified. Mr. Wallace made12big pitch on that last week when we even talked about13hypothetical numbers.14Mr. Wallace said, oh, well, those numbers aren't15the record and they can't talk about this and they can't16talk about that. It's all in the record. So, okay, if our

I see no reason 0 to allow not to allow these experts, but if you want to 	 expert can't talk about anything because it's not in the trial record, they don't get to tactically now say, all right, now, we are going to bring in Lewis and deprive yo of any opportunity to rebut to provide a sur-rebuttal reargue the letter, which I read very carefully, go ahead. MR. KISE: I won't reargue the letter. Thank you, Your Honor. I am not going to reargue the letter, but I am going to point out that this is clearly the Government has held these witnesses back. They could have called these 	 Lewis. I mean, in the first instance, any of his testimony should have been provided on direct. They had full acce to the experts.  witnesses, particularly Mr. Sneddon, on their in their affirmative case. The case law from the Court of Appeals is quite clear that rebuttal is limited to just that rebuttal. If we didn't introduce the issue in our case, they can't now say, oh, well, I'm rebutting your case by calling a witness that was fully available to them. They called Allen Weisselberg. They cross-examined Allen Weisselberg. They called Jeff McConney. They cross-examined Jeff McConney. When Jeff McConney took the stand in our case, they also cross-examined Jeff McConney. None of the issues that Mr. Sneddon at least from what we can see. Again, we have no proffer which I tried to get out of the Government last week and that was rejected but none of the issues that Mr. Sneddon can possibly speak to relate to anything that happened in our case. They may relate to testimony that they elicited in their case but the time to have dealt with that has passed. THE COURT: Okay. I do plaintiff, do you agree with what was just said? 	 misnomer because they were all exchanged at the same tim So the experts were designated in most cases as both. The are not really one or the other. Professor Lewis put on a affirmative provided an affirmative report. He also provided what we are calling our rebuttal report in this case which responds to our experts, but in the nature of th timing, the way the case, according to the case law, shou have laid out is if the Government wanted to introduced Professor Lewis testimony, they would have called him their case-in-chief and introduced that testimony. Then we would have rebutted it in the ordinary course. We would have had the opportunity to challenge th testimony in the ordinary course. And then to the exte that new issues were raised or issues requiring rebutta along the lines of the case law that Your Honor is acknowledging, they would then be able to, perhaps, reca Professor Lewis opinions and I'll put that word in quot because we are going to renew our challenge to the exte the Court is going to allow him to testify, we are going to 11 word you chose to use, but I am asking you to analyze and 12 analyze for this court the word you chose to use, very 13 succinctly. You chose to use the word marginal instead of 14 having an absolute statement, correct?

15 chose to use the word or add the word significantly, correct?	15 A What do you mean by absolute statement?
16 A Yes, I do. And maybe I should have used the word	16 Q An absolute statement would be Deutsche Bank did not

Isn't your hypothetical that he could have self-financed because he didn'actually do it? A Of course it is a hypothetical. Everything, yes. Q So, let's assume that he did put in the 150 150 million to 160 million to renovate Doral, okay. Assume that for the moment. Would that alter your conclusion that he could have self-financed both projects? A The investment

Maybe not. Yeah. Q With respect to valuations on a statement of financial condition, what does the term reverse engineering mean? A Reverse engineering mean that you first pick up a value and then you pick a model in an assumption to justify this value. Q In one of your reports or affidavits, on direct testimony, you mentioned Aswath Damodaran, did I pronounce that correctly? A I think so, yeah. Q Who's is he again? A He is my colleague. He is a very well-known professor in the finance department of NYU and on Wall Street he is known as the dean of valuation. Q Do you agree with his statement that you cite to in your affidavit that, in fact, in many valuations, the price gets set first and the valuation follows? If we go down to line 112, do you see where it says, "40 Wall Street?" A. I do. Q. Do you see it has an "NOI" there for 40 Wall Street of 26,234,000? A. I do. Q. And, do you see what the basis for reaching that NOI is right above? A. Yes. Q. Do you see that it's an average income for the five-year period subtracting an average expense for the five-year period to reach that NOI? A. I do. This is known as stabilize net operating income. So, they don't took the number from the statement whatever whatever statement they use. Because, net 	25 E.Ba 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21	 NOI, you can compute it based on past data. Remember we wee going to introduce, for record purposes, copies of their reports that the Court didn't allow. And I believe there were some documents associated with Patrick Birney's testimony that we are trying to do by agreement with the Attorney General so that it will save us all the time associated with having Mr. Birney go through those documents. I believe that happened a couple of weeks or so ago when Mr. Birney was on the stand, but I will let Miss Hernandez touch on those three issues. MS. HERNANDEZ: Hi, Your Honor. We would like to move into evidence D1079 which is Shubin's report just for appellate purposes as we discussed.

And just because a document is a plaintiff's exhibit, doesn't mean they get to put it in without having a witness on the stand. We can put in documents that are party admissions against interest without necessarily having the author of the document on the witness stand. But if it's their document, they don't get to do that because it's hearsay for them. So, it is just totally inappropriate to, you know, minutes before you rest your case to say, oh, by the way, I have a 180 some odd documents I want to put into evidence. It is not the way that they should approach this at all. THE COURT: I mean, just as a general matter of how cases are how trials are conducted, plaintiff's points are very valid unless the defendants can point to, you know, some earlier agreement. Apparently, according to the person that sits alongside me, where a handful was used, 182 is an awful lot of documents. MR. KISE: We can go back and look at the transcript. There was an agreement and an understanding that we would take Mr. Birney off the stand and we would	Proceed 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20	edings Page 6584 want the case to end. MS. HERNANDEZ: Me too. MR. WALLACE: On November 29th, colloquy with Mr. Robert was, I think the deal that we made, I'll let Mr. Wallace confirm it, is that we will, later tonight, Miss Hernandez will send a list of documents that we believe constitute the backup that this witness would have authenticated and put into evidence. The Attorney General then review it. If they have anything else they want to add, there may be some discussion. So we may have to bring Mr. Birney back for that limited purpose. We are hoping not to. If someone had 182 documents sitting in this courtroom ready to have Mr. Birney authenticate on November 29th, there was no reason to wait until last night at 9:30 p.m. to send them to us and ask for us to agree to them. I think the witnesses the defendants, they do not have a witness, should be resting. It shouldn't be, well, we can call Mr. Birney back tomorrow. I don't know where the 182 came from.

I'm not sure why we have 182, that number, that number does seem high because I wouldn't think maybe, it's something to do how they're structured, that we can explain to the court. But I don't want to make any representations as to why that number is high or low or perhaps it can be substantially compressed without without having just a few minutes to review the situation and understand. THE COURT: Maybe, it's one booklet with 182 pages. See what you can do. I still think the fair thing to do here is that I would deny it without prejudice send them a ist of the documents and you can have as long as you want. We're just trying to get them in the record. I mean, it's just almost a theoretical construct. I can show the Court, if you will allow me to hand this up, an example. THE COURT: Do you have another copy so plaintiff can see it? MR. KISE: It's on their exhibit list. It is Plaintiff's Exhibit 701. The point is, Judge, as you can see, its just comparable backup data. It's all routine matter that, really, shouldn't be controversial at all. It's just what Patrick Birney would testify, "Yes, this is on 40 Wall Street. We sent him this piece of paper." It is not there for the truth of the matter asserted. One thing we could do is just simply submit an affidavit, from Mr. Birney, that says, "Yes, this is all the backup." But in order to save the Court that time, we're just going to do it the way I suggested if that's acceptable to the Court. MR. ROBERT: So the record is clear, that's on behalf of all defendants, your Honor. Thank you THE COURT: How about we do this. You kno I like to discuss things in a reasonable manner. So Mr. Kise all defendants I should say Mr. Robert, Ms. Habba et cetera, move for a directe verdict. It doesn't have to be formal. Send whateve you want. You can move orally so, why not be inform in writing? And I'll give the AG a couple of business days to decide whether they need to respond. And the

Ind you've heard our arguments on that. Page 6594 But, that would be the yeah, we'll submit omething, in writing to the Court, Friday morning. THE COURT: I have a general policy of ybody wants to write me, send me something, go ahead and do it. There's no way I'm going to grant that. The you strongly object to my allowing that? MR. WALLACE: I think I object on a logical asis. There was another motion, for directed verdict, om Ms. Habba, three days ago, that was denied. By Friday, we'll have certainly rested our buttal case. The case will be over. We're already theduled for briefing and arguments. So, adding satellite briefing, strikes us as mecessary and not necessary relevant. And quite ankly, a waste of Court resources. Maybe Mr. Amer has additional points. MR. AMER: I would say if you're going to ankly, a written motion from defendants THE COURT: It is more like I'll accept it. doesn't mean I will entertain it. MR. KISE: I think you already said it. THE COURT: I will disregard it or ignore	24 25 Proceed 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22	verdict. Frankly we will and, this is why I dings Page 65 suggested Friday for our submission to streamline th process. Frankly, once they are done with their rebuttal case, we'll need again, for record purposes, to make the motion for directed verdict so we could submit one brief to the Court or one submission it really not a brief, one submission to the Court, in lieu of doing what is normally done, which is we present it live on the record. But in order to save the Court that time, we're just going to do it the way I suggested if that's acceptable to the Court. MR. What are some of the areas that you focus on? A. So early in my career I was doing research that was, pretty closely, related to my doctoral dissertation. It was business valuation type research, valuing assets that are a little bit difficult to value because they don't have a ready market. So the first thing that I published post doctoral dissertation was a paper called "Valuing Intellectual Assets." That was published in the Journal of Legal Economics. I've also published papers on valuing companies 	1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23	 board of that journal? A. So as a member of the editorial board, I fairly, regularly, receive papers that are candidates for publication in the journal. And, I am asked to review them for quality, mak comments, propose edits and then recommend them to the editor for rejection, review and resubmittal or ultimate acceptance. Q. In addition to your work on the editorial board, for the journal, have you held any other professional affiliations? A. So, I keep a loose affiliation with the association of certified fraud examiners. I'm not a certified fraud examiner. But, I use some of publications Fraud Magazine being a big one so I sta associated with them. I have been an officer, held leadership positions, in the American Accounting Association which is the academ association for accountants mostly who teach at colleg and universities. But, also a few professional accountant I have been the president of the northeast region of the American Accounting Association which is the regio roughly, from Maine to Rhode Island. And, around a

Consistently, I have taught advanced financial accounting. That's the class that has the module on partnerships where we discuss Statements of Financial Condition, personal financial statements in general. Q. So, you've taught advanced financial accounting throughout your academic career? A. Yes, right; about 30 years now. Q. Do you also conduct academic research? A. I do. Q. But, what, exactly, is this witness being First of all, he's a rebuttal witness; number one. And they have represented that his testimony is going to be very, narrow. They have told the Court that. So, what, precisely, is his expertise that we're going to hear about? Because, so far I haven't heard anything this he's particularly expert. I've just heard, generally, about accounting from an engineering school. So, what is it that, precisely he doesn't have the broad qualifications, he's not part of the research track, he's not part he doesn't contribute to the ongoing development of the profession. And so far, what we've heard about is a $18 million budget at the board of a kids' school. And he's an expert in accounting? We're just going to that's the standard? The bar is fairly low if that's where we're headed. I would like them to, at least, define the	1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22	few minutes. THE COURT: Whatever it takes. If we have to run until tomorrow, we will. But, start now. I will just suggest the following, Mr. Kise. If you are going to maybe, the right word is challenge or attack what he's saying, fine. If you are going to go into all sorts of areas that he might not know about accounting, I'm still going to that wouldn't change the decision. But, do what you MR. KISE: I am not sure anything would change any decision in this courtroom respectfully. But, nonetheless, I will make the record. VOIR DIRE BY MR. KISE: Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Lewis. A. Good afternoon. Q. You're not a CPA, correct? A. I'm not. Q. You never sat for the CPA exam, right? A. Not taken the CPA. Q. Your undergraduate degree is not in accounting, correct?

In my opinion, it is in accounting. Q. I didn't ask what your opinion is. I asked what the piece of paper says. The piece of paper says, "engineering." A. It says, "Concentration: Accounting." It says, "Administrative and Engineering Systems." Q. You have no experience preparing, reviewing or using compilation statements in practice, correct? A. Very brief time in public accounting in the early 1990s. Q. So, thirty years ago I believe you testified that you were a member of the audit staff not as a CPA, you were like a clerk? A. I wasn't a clerk. I was a staff auditor. Q. You weren't a CPA? A. No. Q. That's the sole extent of your experience with practical accounting? 	1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21	 A. Uh-huh. Q. And the summer of 2021; is that correct; sound about right? A. Yeah, there are two in there; one of them is effectively representing low income taxpayers and the oth is understanding alternate tax ID numbers. Q. Representing low income taxpayers has nothing do with the issues in this case, correct? A. That's correct. Q. Tell me, again, what, exactly, is a Professor of Practice? Explain that to me. A. So Cornell has three different tracks for faculty; they have research track faculty, who have a lower teachin load and a very high requirement for producing academiresearch. They have the track that I am on, which is the Professor of Practice track. And that has a higher teachin load. It does not carry a research requirement but, it carries a requirement to stay current with professional standards, with current practice.

Q If we look at the next section under the heading compilation procedures, there are four paragraphs number 13 through 16. How if, in any way, does the guidance in this section affect the issuer's responsibility for the contents of the financial statement? A It does not change the issuer's responsibility. A If while doing the compilation, not doing extra work or investigation, but during the compilation something comes to the attention of the accountants, they have that it could be a GAAP departure. It could be a problem. They have the responsibility to bring that issue to the issuer, to the client. Q What comfort, if any, should an issuer take from the fact that an accountant performing a compilation engagement did not identify a specific GAAP departure? A Absolutely none. Q If we can focus on the Y axis, what level of assurance is offered in a compilation engagement? A No assurance. It's not even considered to be an assurance engagement. Q And what level of assurance is offered in a review engagement? A In a review engagement, accountants offer a level of assurance that's referred to as negative assurance where, essentially, they are saying we did some procedures, not extensive procedures, and we didn't find any problems. Does the distinction between the term "could" and d" mean anything to you, Mr. Lewis? Sure. So, "could" indicates a possibility as does d." So, if we go to the glossary definition of ated current value we could pull that up from iff's Exhibit 1609. Let's just clear something up here. If we go to wo, you said, "The primary focus of personal financial nents is a person's assets and liabilities. And the ry users of personal financial statements normally der estimated current value information to be more unt than their historical cost information." Do you see is that? I see it. Yeah, you read the first lines of raph two. You see here where it says, "Estimated current

Now, Mr. Lewis, are you familiar with the other definitions in the accounting standards for value? A. I'm familiar with fair value. Q. What's the definition of fair value? A. You could we were just looking at it. So, I'm not going to recite it as a memory test. If you want to show it to me Q. In your own words, what's the definition of fair value? A. Fair value looks to establish a market-based approach to valuing an asset by looking at three different levels; one, is an active and engaged market, the second level is a model and the third level is an estimate. The word-for-word definition, I won't try to recite.
