November 21, 2023

The Honorable LaVonne Griffin-Valade
Oregon Secretary of State
900 Court Street NE
Capitol Room 136
Salem, OR 97301

Sent via email: oregon.sos@sos.oregon.gov

Request for temporary rule and declaratory ruling

Dear Secretary Griffin-Valade,

In the months leading up to the January 6, 2021 assault on the United States Capitol, and while his supporters were sacking the Capitol, former President Donald J. Trump incited and facilitated an insurrection against the United States. Mr. Trump has declared his candidacy for president again in 2024. However, under the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, Mr. Trump is constitutionally ineligible to appear on any future ballot for federal office based on his engagement in insurrection against the United States. We therefore write to request that you exercise your authority and obligation to exclude Mr. Trump from the 2024 Oregon primary and general election ballots.

Pursuant to ORS 183.410 and OAR 137-001-0080, we request that you issue a temporary rule (and subsequent declaratory ruling) that Mr. Trump is constitutionally ineligible to appear on any Oregon future ballot for nomination of election to federal office. Due to the urgency involved in this determination and the time required for probable judicial review before the printing of Oregon’s 2024 primary election ballots, we request a response to this request by December 1, 2023.
I. The Constitution’s Insurrectionist Disqualification Clause disqualifies Trump from the presidency.

Section 3 of the Fourteenth Amendment, known as the Insurrectionist Disqualification Clause, provides:

No person shall be a Senator or Representative in Congress, or elector of President and Vice President, or hold any office, civil or military, under the United States, or under any state, who, having previously taken an oath . . . as an officer of the United States . . . to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof. But Congress may by a vote of two-thirds of each House, remove such disability.

As set forth in the attached proposed declaratory ruling, this clause applies to Donald Trump. Having sworn an oath to support the Constitution as an officer of the United States, he then “engaged” in the January 6 insurrection as that term is defined by law and precedent. Thus, Trump is now ineligible to hold any “office . . . under the United States,” including the presidency, unless and until he is relieved of that disqualification by two-thirds of both chambers of Congress.¹

II. Secretaries of State may enforce Section 3.

States may enforce Section 3 without any new or special federal legislation. As explained in detail in a recent report by Free Speech For People and Professor Gerard Magliocca of Indiana University Law School, and likewise in a recent law review article by conservative originalist Professors William Baude and Michael Stokes Paulsen, states can enforce Section 3 without any new federal legislation—just as they regularly enforce other constitutional provisions and other sections of the Fourteenth Amendment itself.\(^2\)

¹ The facts underlying this misconduct are so well-known as not to require repetition here. The attached proposed declaratory ruling sets forth the factual and legal basis for Trump’s disqualification; the remainder of this letter focuses on why you, as Secretary of State, have the authority to make that determination.

As the report explains, states do not need permission from Congress to enforce the U.S. Constitution. Nothing in the text, original public meaning, or the Reconstruction-era history of Section 3’s implementation suggests that states need authorization from Congress to implement this part of the Constitution. To the contrary, the history of Reconstruction shows that Congress, state courts, and even ex-Confederate insurrectionists all understood Section 3 to apply without a federal enforcement statute. Indeed, during Reconstruction, states repeatedly enforced Section 3 in exactly that circumstance.

In fact, in 2022 two different states (Georgia and New Mexico) heard Section 3 challenges against those involved in the January 6, 2021 insurrection. And just this month, a Colorado court held a five-day trial on a Section 3 challenge to Trump, concluding that Trump in fact engaged in insurrection.\(^3\) These challenges did not need any special federal legislation, as they relied on standard state legal procedures for challenging a politician’s constitutional eligibility for office.

Furthermore, states may require presidential candidates to demonstrate that they meet these qualifications—and exclude them if they do not. As Judge (now Justice) Gorsuch “expressly reaffirm[ed]” in 2012 on behalf of a federal appellate court, “a state’s legitimate interest in protecting the integrity and practical functioning of the political process permits it to exclude from the ballot candidates who are constitutionally prohibited from assuming office.”

\(^3\) The trial court also held, against the weight of authority, that Section 3 does not apply to ex-presidents or the presidency; that decision is now under expedited appeal to the Colorado Supreme Court.

Just as states are permitted (if not required) to exclude from the presidential ballot a candidate who is not a natural born citizen, who is underage, or who has already served two terms as president, so too states should exclude from the ballot a candidate who previously swore to support the Constitution but then engaged in insurrection.

This is not like other cases where courts have rejected state efforts to impose additional ballot access qualifications beyond those found in the Constitution. Here, the eligibility criterion is imposed by the Constitution itself. Section 3 of the Fourteenth Amendment added an additional qualification for presidential eligibility beyond those first imposed in 1787. In other words, since 1868, the qualifications for eligibility for the presidency—in addition to natural born citizenship, age, and residency—have also included not having engaged in insurrection against the United States after having taken an oath to support the Constitution. And Trump does not meet that qualification.

---

7 See U.S. Const. amend. XXII.

III. As Secretary of State, you enforce Section 3 in Oregon.

You have the authority and responsibility to determine, as part of the state ballot qualification process, whether a candidate for office is ineligible to appear on the Oregon presidential primary ballot because, “having previously taken an oath . . . to support the Constitution of the United States,” he then proceeded to “engage[] in insurrection or rebellion against the same.” In general, your authority to exclude an ineligible candidate from the presidential ballot inheres in the interaction between the roles of Congress and the states in the presidential selection process. The states, including officers such as Secretaries, play a critical role in that process but cannot act inconsistently with the U.S. Constitution.

In Oregon, a presidential primary candidate may qualify to appear on the Oregon primary election ballot in two ways. ORS 249.078(1) provides:

249.078 Printing name of candidate for presidential nomination of major party on ballot; discretion of Secretary of State; nominating petition; petition requirements. (1) The name of a candidate for a major political party nomination for President of the United States shall be printed on the ballot only:

(a) By direction of the Secretary of State who in the secretary’s sole discretion has determined that the candidate’s candidacy is generally advocated or is recognized in national news media; or

---

10 See Williams v. Rhodes, 393 U.S. 23, 29 (1968); see also Ex parte Virginia, 100 U.S. 339, 347 (1879) (“A State acts by its legislative, its executive, or its judicial authorities. It can act in no other way.”).
(b) By nominating petition described in this section and filed with the Secretary of State.

If the candidate seeks to appear on the ballot by means of a nominating petition, the candidate is required to file with the Secretary of State a declaration including “[a] statement that the candidate will qualify if elected.”

The Secretary of State then “may verify the validity,” or “reject declarations when the candidate will not be qualified to take office.” Specifically, if the Secretary “determines that a candidate has. . . become disqualified, or that the candidate will not qualify in time for the office if elected, the name of the candidate may not be printed on the ballots.” Since an insurrectionist is constitutionally disqualified from becoming president, any declaration such candidate puts forth is inherently defective and cannot be verified, thereby precluding placement of their name on the ballot.

The other way for a candidate to appear on a presidential primary ballot in Oregon is when the Secretary of State determines “that the candidate’s candidacy is generally advocated or is recognized in national news media,” pursuant to ORS 249.078(1)(a). When the Secretary makes such a determination, she notifies the prospective candidate and requires that the candidate file a completed SEL 101 form, which (as noted above) requires the candidate to attest that “I will qualify for said office if elected.” The Secretary then verifies the SEL 101 form in the same manner as for a candidate who filed a nominating petition and is obligated to disqualify the candidate under ORS 254.165(1), if the qualifications are not met.

ORS 254.165 makes clear that the Secretary is not to place on the ballot the name of a person who is disqualified to serve in the office sought.

---

11 ORS § 249.031(1)(f) (major party candidate declaration); see also Or. Sec’y of State, Candidate Filing (for) Major Political Party or Nonpartisan, available at https://sos.oregon.gov/elections/Documents/SEL101.pdf (requiring presidential candidates to attest that “I will qualify for said office if elected”).

12 ORS 249.004(1); State ex rel. Kristof v. Fagan, 369 Or. 261, 277 (2022); Pense v. McCall, 243 Or. 383, 393 (1966).

13 ORS 254.165(1).
Last year, the Supreme Court of Oregon reaffirmed the Secretary’s role in removing ineligible candidates from the ballot. In denying a non-resident candidate’s petition for governor, the Court determined that the “legislature has accorded the secretary the responsibility of determining, in the first instance, whether a prospective candidate is qualified to appear on the ballot” and would otherwise “be meaningless if it was not contemplated that [the Secretary] would take action if facts became known to him which show that the candidate is unqualified.” The January 6, 2021 attack and its facts are well documented for the Secretary to know and thereby “take action” to prevent Mr. Trump from appearing on Oregon ballots for President in 2024.

Another example: On August 8, 2023, the Secretary adopted a temporary rule to implement Measure 113 (2022), which amended the Oregon Constitution to disqualify certain members of the Oregon Legislature from serving in that body for a subsequent term. The Secretary concluded that she was required to exclude those members from appearing on the ballot, even though Measure 113 contained no provision about ballot access.

Moreover, Oregon law leaves the Secretary no neutral position. No other Oregon official is required to “diligently seek out any evidence of violation of any election law” and remove an ineligible candidate’s name from the ballot. Oregon courts have affirmed that the “test of eligibility [for a candidate for federal office] must be. . . laid down in the federal Constitution.” Here, that test is provided by Section 3 of the 14 Kristof, 369 Or. at 278; Pense, 243 Or. at 393.

15 Id.

16 ORS 246.046.

Fourteenth Amendment. As such, allowing a known insurrectionist to appear on the ballot is inconsistent with your obligation and oath of office to support the U.S. Constitution as “the supreme Law of the Land.”\(^\text{18}\)

IV. Section 3 does not require that you wait for someone else to adjudicate this question first.

Section 3 does not require that Congress, a court, or anyone else, adjudicate the question of Mr. Trump’s ineligibility before you may decide his eligibility for the ballot. Section 3 of the Fourteenth Amendment disqualifies officials who have engaged in insurrection from holding office without requiring any particular decisionmaker (certainly not a particular federal decisionmaker) to make that determination, and “[c]onstitutional provisions are presumed to be self-executing.”\(^\text{19}\)

Moreover, Section 3 does not require a prior criminal conviction. To the contrary, most ex-Confederates—including those disqualified under Section 3—were never charged with any crimes. See, e.g., Powell, 65 N.C. at 709 (defendant not charged with any prior crime); Worthy, 63 N.C. at 203 (defendant not charged with any crime); In re Tate, 63 N.C. 308 (1869) (defendant not charged with any crime); Gerard N. Magliocca, Amnesty and Section Three of the Fourteenth Amendment, 36 Const. Comment. 87, 98-99 (2021) (in special congressional action in 1868 to enforce Section 3 and remove Georgia legislators, none of whom \(^{18}\) U.S. Const., art. VI, cl. 2-3. In fact, even if state law did purport to require you to list Trump’s name, the U.S. Constitution trumps any state law that would ostensibly require you to approve or certify an insurrectionist as a valid candidate for federal office. No state authority, including the state legislature or even the state constitution, could compel a state official to violate the U.S. Constitution. “[A]ny conflicting obligations” of state law “must give way” to federal law when there is a conflict. Washington v. Wash. State Comm’l Passenger Fishing Vessel Ass’n, 443 U.S. 658, 691–92 (1979). Any state law that purports to require you to misuse your official powers to aid a constitutionally ineligible insurrectionist in obtaining office must give way to the 14th Amendment.

\(^{19}\) 16 Am. Jur. 2d Constitutional Law § 103.
had been charged criminally). In 2022 and 2023, a Colorado court (where Trump was a party) and a Georgia court both confirmed that no authority suggests that a criminal conviction was ever considered necessary to trigger the Disqualification Clause. See Anderson v. Griswold, No. 2023CV32577 (Colo. Dist. Ct. Nov. 17, 2023), at 77 n.17 (“[A]t no point in this proceeding has Trump (or any other party) argued that some type of appropriate criminal conviction is a necessary precondition to disqualification under Section Three. There is nothing in the text of Section Three suggesting that such is required, and the Court has found no case law or historical source suggesting that a conviction is a required element of disqualification.”); Rowan et al. v. Marjorie Taylor Greene, No. 2222582-OSAH-SECSTATE-CE-57-Beaudrot, slip op. at 13-14 (Ga. Ofc. of Admin. Hrgs. May 6, 2022), available at https://bit.ly/MTGOSAH, aff’d sub nom. Rowan v. Raffensperger, No. S23D0071 (Ga. Sept. 1, 2022).

Furthermore, the fact that the Senate failed to convict Mr. Trump in his impeachment trial is irrelevant. Fifty-seven senators voted to convict Mr. Trump of incitement to insurrection. Of the forty-three senators who voted to acquit, twenty-two expressly based their vote on their belief that the Senate lacked jurisdiction to try a former official and either criticized Mr. Trump or did not state any view on the merits. Thus, it is almost certainly the case that sixty-seven, if not more, senators agree that Mr. Trump is guilty of incitement to insurrection.

20 Rather than require a criminal conviction as a prerequisite to a civil action to disqualify an officeholder, Congress did the reverse and imposed criminal penalties for those who held office in defiance of the Disqualification Clause. See Act of May 31, 1870, ch. 114, § 15, 16 Stat. 140, 143.

21 Available at https://www.courts.state.co.us/userfiles/file/Court_Probation/02nd_Judicial_District/Denver_District_Court/11_17_2023%20Final%20Order.pdf.

But even if not, nothing in Section 3 of the Fourteenth Amendment says that two-thirds of the U.S. Senate must first render a preliminary determination. To the contrary, Section 3 provides that two-thirds of the Senate is needed to remove the disability. Even if all forty-three senators who voted not to convict Mr. Trump voted to remove the disability under Section 3, that would fall well short even of a majority, let alone the two thirds needed to remove the disqualification.

Finally, your determination would not deprive Mr. Trump of due process of law. He can challenge an adverse determination in court pursuant to ORS 246.910, ORS 183.410, ORS 183.482, or Article VII (Amended), Section 2, of the Oregon Constitution.

V. Conclusion

Your oath to support the Constitution, and the weighty responsibility entrusted to you by Oregon voters as Secretary of State, impel you to exclude Mr. Trump’s name from the list of “qualified candidates” in the presidential primary.

But rather than wait until after he submits a declaration of candidacy or SEL 101 form, with the urgency of an approaching primary election, we urge you to address this critical issue now. Mr. Trump’s conduct encouraging the “Big Lie” of a stolen election, encouraging and inciting an insurrection, and facilitating that insurrection by refusing to intervene to stop it despite urgent requests that he do so and by supervising subordinates who actively blocked the National Guard from assisting the besieged Capitol Police, renders him ineligible for any federal office, including that of president.
We would be pleased to discuss this request for a temporary rule and declaratory ruling with you further and to render any assistance that we may.

Dated: November 21, 2023

Respectfully Submitted,

Jason Kafoury
OSB No. 091200
Kafoury & McDougal
411 SW Second Ave Ste 200
Portland OR 97204
503-224-2647 voice
jkafoury@kafourymcdougal.com

Daniel W. Meek
OSB No. 79124
10266 S.W. Lancaster Road
Portland, OR 97219
503-293-9021 voice
dan@meek.net

Co-counsel for Free Speech For People

Ron Fein, Legal Director
John Bonifaz, President
Ben Clements, Chairman and Senior Legal Advisor
Courtney Hostetler, Senior Counsel
Amira Mattar, Counsel
Free Speech For People
1320 Centre St. #405
Newton, MA 02459
rfein@freespeechforpeople.org amira@freespeechforpeople.org chostetler@freespeechforpeople.org jbonifaz@freespeechforpeople.org bclements@freespeechforpeople.org

Co-counsel for Free Speech For People

Attachment: proposed temporary rule and declaratory ruling
SECRETARY OF STATE’S TEMPORARY RULE AND DECLARATORY RULING THAT DONALD TRUMP IS DISQUALIFIED FROM PUBLIC OFFICE UNDER SECTION 3 OF THE FOURTEENTH AMENDMENT AND WILL BE BARRED FROM APPEARING ON THE STATE BALLOT AS A PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE.

Upon review of Section 3 of the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution (the Disqualification Clause), relevant precedent thereunder, the facts and circumstances surrounding the insurrection of January 6, 2021, and applicable state law, I have concluded that Donald J. Trump is disqualified from public office under the Disqualification Clause, and therefore is not a “candidate [who] will qualify if elected” under ORS § 249.031 or ORS 254.165. Consequently, he is ineligible to appear on Oregon ballots as a presidential candidate.

In accordance with ORS 183.335(5) and OAR 137-001-0080, I find that a temporary rule is necessary because failure to act promptly will result in serious prejudice to the public interest or the interest of the parties concerned. The timeframe for a complete declaratory ruling procedure under ORS chapter 137 cannot be completed before March 12, 2024 (the last day for a major party candidate to file a SEL 101 form) or May 21, 2024 (Oregon’s presidential primary). To ensure that Oregon’s presidential primary is conducted consistently with the U.S. Constitution, while allowing Mr. Trump a timely opportunity to challenge this decision if he so chooses, this temporary rule is necessary while the full declaratory ruling process is underway.

I do not reach this decision lightly. But I have sworn an oath to support and uphold the U.S. Constitution, and I cannot ignore its clear command:

No person shall . . . hold any office, civil or military, under the United States, . . . who, having previously taken an oath, . . . as an officer of the United States, . . . to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof.

U.S. Const. art. XIV, § 3.
As set forth in more detail below, Donald J. Trump took an oath as an officer (President) of the United States to support the Constitution of the United States, but then engaged in insurrection within the meaning of the Disqualification Clause, and is therefore ineligible to hold “any office” under the United States—including the presidency. Therefore, consistent with U.S. Supreme Court Justice Neil Gorsuch’s analysis of the role of state election officials regarding the candidacies of constitutionally ineligible candidates, I hereby determine that he is ineligible to appear on the presidential primary ballot in this state.

This decision is subject to judicial review in accordance with applicable state or federal law.

I. The Role of States in Protecting the Ballot

States may require presidential candidates to demonstrate that they meet these qualifications and exclude them if they do not. As then-Judge (now U.S. Supreme Court Justice) Neil Gorsuch “expressly reaffirm[ed]” in 2012, “a state’s legitimate interest in protecting the integrity and practical functioning of the political process permits it to exclude from the ballot candidates who are constitutionally prohibited from assuming office.”

For this reason, states have excluded from the presidential ballot candidates who were not natural born citizens, or who were underage. And just as states may exclude from the presidential ballot a candidate

1 Hassan v. Colorado, 495 Fed. App’x 947, 948 (10th Cir. 2012) (Gorsuch, J.), aff’g 870 F. Supp. 2d 1192 (D. Colo. 2012) (upholding state requirement that presidential candidates affirm that they meet constitutional qualifications for office, including natural-born citizen requirement).

3 See Lindsay v. Bowen, 750 F.3d 1061 (9th Cir. 2014) (upholding California Secretary of State’s rejection of underage candidate); Socialist Workers Party of Illinois v. Ogilvie, 357 F. Supp. 109, 112 (N.D. Ill. 1972) (similar in Illinois).
who is not a natural born citizen, who is underage, or who has previously been elected twice as president,4 so too states should exclude from the ballot a candidate who previously swore to support the Constitution, but then engaged in insurrection.

Fundamentally, my authority and responsibility to exclude an ineligible candidate from the presidential ballot inheres in the interaction between the roles of Congress and the states in the presidential selection process. The states play a critical role in that process, but cannot act inconsistently with the U.S. Constitution.5 Even in a state without specific legislation addressing ballot access for constitutionally ineligible candidates, officials may not use their official powers to take any action—including approving, certifying, or implementing a ballot placement—to facilitate an insurrectionist’s attempt to obtain office.6 Nor is there any requirement for federal legislation empowering state officials to follow the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.7

In Oregon, a presidential primary candidate is required to file with the Secretary of State a declaration including “[a] statement that the candidate will qualify if elected.”8 The candidate is required to file

4 See U.S. Const. amend. XXII, § 1.

6 See Ex parte Virginia, 100 U.S. 339, 347 (1879) (“A State acts by its legislative, its executive, or its judicial authorities. It can act in no other way.”).

8 ORS249.031 (major party candidate declaration); see also Or. Sec’y of State, Candidate Filing (for) Major Political Party or Nonpartisan, available at https://sos.oregon.gov/elections/Documents/SEL101.pdf (requiring presidential candidates to attest that “I will qualify for said office if elected”).
this declaration (by means of form SEL 101), even if placement on the Oregon primary ballot is initiated by the Secretary of State under ORS 249.078(1)(a). The Secretary of State then “may verify the validity,” or “reject declarations when the candidate will not be qualified to take office.”9 If the Secretary “determines that a candidate has. . . become disqualified, or that the candidate will not qualify in time for the office if elected, the name of the candidate may not be printed on the ballots.”10 Since an insurrectionist is constitutionally disqualified from becoming president, any declaration such candidate puts forth is inherently defective and cannot be verified, thereby precluding placement of their name on the ballot.

While some may question the public interest in excluding a constitutionally ineligible candidate from the ballot, I believe that Justice Gorsuch was correct. Furthermore, the Constitution is “the supreme Law of the Land,” which I have taken an oath to support.11 And allowing a known insurrectionist to appear on the ballot would be inconsistent with my obligation and oath of office to support the U.S. Constitution.12

This situation is not like other cases where courts have rejected state efforts to impose additional ballot access qualifications beyond

9 ORS 249.004(1); State ex rel. Kristof v. Fagan, 369 Or. 261, 277 (2022); Pense v. McCall, 243 Or. 383, 393 (1966).

10 ORS 254.165(1).

11 U.S. Const., art. VI, cl. 2-3.

12 In fact, notwithstanding any contrary statement of state law, the U.S. Constitution trumps any state law that would ostensibly require election officials to approve or certify an insurrectionist as a valid candidate for federal office. No state authority, including the state legislature or even the state constitution, could compel a state official to violate the U.S. Constitution. “[A]ny conflicting obligations” of state law “must give way” to federal law when there is a conflict. Washington v. Wash. State Comm’l Passenger Fishing Vessel Ass’n, 443 U.S. 658, 691–92 (1979). Any state law that purports to require election officials to misuse their official powers to aid a constitutionally ineligible insurrectionist in obtaining office must give way to the 14th Amendment.
those found in the Constitution. Here, the eligibility criterion is imposed by the Constitution itself. Section 3 of the Fourteenth Amendment added an additional qualification for presidential eligibility beyond those first imposed in 1787. In other words, since 1868, the qualifications for eligibility for the presidency—in addition to natural born citizenship, age, and residency—have also included not having engaged in insurrection against the United States after having taken an oath to support the Constitution.

Some authority suggests that “proceedings, evidence, decisions, and enforcements of decisions, more or less formal, are indispensable” in reaching a Section 3 disqualification decision. That may be so, but there is no constitutional requirement that Congress, a court, or anyone else formally adjudicate this question before my decision—in other words, such proceedings may occur in review of, not as a prerequisite to, my decision. Section 3 of the Fourteenth Amendment disqualifies officials who have engaged in insurrection from holding office without requiring any particular decisionmaker to make that determination, and “[c]onstitutional provisions are presumed to be self-executing.” During Reconstruction, for example, officials denied office to those disqualified by Section 3, subject to the disqualified office-seeker’s right to seek judicial review of that decision. For this reason, Trump may 14 See Powell v. McCormack, 395 U.S. 486, 521 n.41 (1969) (noting in dictum that Section Three arguably imposes a “qualification” for office); Cawthorn v. Amalfi, 35 F.4th 245, 275-82 (4th Cir. 2022) (Richardson, J., concurring in the judgment) (arguing that Section Three is a “qualification” for office).

---

15 In re Griffin, 11 F. Cas. 7, 26 (C.C.D. Va. 1869).

17 See, e.g., Worthy v. Barrett, 63 N.C. 199, 200 (1869) (individual who won most votes for county sheriff presented himself to county commissioners for his commission, but they refused it; he then sued); see also In re Tate, 63 N.C. 308, 308 (1869) (similar).
challenge my decision in any court with jurisdiction, under applicable state or federal law.

II. Relevant Facts

The facts of the events leading up to and including January 6, 2021 are largely undisputed and need not be repeated in full here. While new evidence continues to emerge, the events took place substantially in public, and my analysis is based solely on generally available information. In reaching my conclusions, I have relied on the following factual sources:

- The federal court decision in Eastman v. Thompson, wherein a United States district court found by a preponderance of the evidence that Trump, through his actions leading up to the attack on the Capitol on January 6, 2021, committed the crimes of attempting to obstruct an official proceeding and conspiracy to defraud the United States. ¹⁸
- The materials and evidence presented to the U.S. Senate in Trump’s 2021 impeachment trial for incitement of insurrection. ¹⁹
- The factual findings in Rowan et al. v. Marjorie Taylor Greene. ²⁰

¹⁹ See U.S. Gov’t Pub. Office, Impeachment Related Publications, https://www.govinfo.gov/collection/impeachment-related-publications. The fact that the Senate failed to convict Mr. Trump in his impeachment trial is irrelevant. Fifty-seven senators voted to convict Mr. Trump of incitement to insurrection. Of the 43 senators who voted to acquit, 22 expressly based their vote on their belief that the Senate lacked jurisdiction to try a former official, and either criticized Mr. Trump or did not state any view on the merits. See Ryan Goodman & Josh Asabor, In Their Own Words: The 43 Republicans’ Explanations of Their Votes Not to Convict Trump in Impeachment Trial, JustSecurity (Feb. 15, 2021), https://bit.ly/3uUZA1A. Thus, a clear majority, and a likely two-thirds majority, if not more, of senators agreed that Trump is guilty of incitement to insurrection.

• The factual findings in State of New Mexico ex rel. White v. Couy Griffin. 21
• The televised testimony and other evidence presented to the Select Committee to Investigate the January 6th Attack on the United States Capitol (“January 6 Committee”). 22
• The factual findings in Anderson v. Griswold. 23

III. Legal Analysis

A. The Violent Attack on the U.S. Capitol on January 6, 2021 was an “Insurrection” Under the Disqualification Clause

The January 6, 2021 attack on the U.S. Capitol was an “insurrection” under all conceivably applicable definitions of the word.

An “insurrection” is a “combined resistance” to “lawful authority,” with the intent to deny the exercise of that authority. See Webster’s Dictionary (1830) (“combined resistance to . . . lawful authority . . ., with intent to the denial thereof”); accord, e.g., Allegheny Cty. v. Gibson, 90 Pa. 397, 417 (1879) (nearly identical definition). To qualify as an insurrection, the resistance must be formidable enough to temporarily defy the authority of the government. See In re Charge to Grand Jury, 62 F. 828, 830 (N.D. Ill. 1894) (an uprising “so formidable as for the time being to defy the authority of the United States”) (emphasis added). It must be so significant that it cannot be addressed by ordinary law enforcement, cf. Luther v. Borden, 48 U.S. (7 How.) 1, 2 (1849); In re Charge to Grand Jury, 62 F. at 830, but no minimum threshold of violence is required, id. at 830 (“It is not necessary that there should be bloodshed”).

---

The January 6 insurrection satisfies all these criteria. It was an uprising against the United States that sought to stop the peaceful transfer of power and thereby prevent the government from functioning. It succeeded, temporarily, in defying the authority of the United States by seizing a protected federal building to prevent Congress from fulfilling its constitutional duty to certify the results of a presidential election. The success of the attack may have been short-lived, but even a failed attack with no chance of success can qualify as an insurrection. See Home Ins. Co. of N.Y. v. Davila, 212 F.2d 731, 736 (1st Cir. 1954) (an insurrection “is no less an insurrection because the chances of success are forlorn.”); In re Charge to Grand Jury, 62 F. at 830 (“It is not necessary that its dimensions should be so portentous as to insure probable success.”). In fact, the January 6 insurrection can claim something many past insurrections could not: their violent seizure of the Capitol did, in fact, obstruct and delay an essential constitutional procedure. And it can claim a victory the Confederates never enjoyed: they never attacked the heart of the nation’s capital, prevented a peaceful and orderly presidential transition of power, or took the U.S. Capitol.

The attack was also violent. Multiple people died and 140 law enforcement officers were injured, some severely. The January 6 attack was as violent as at least two previous insurrections against the United States to which the Disqualification Clause was understood to apply: the Whiskey and Shays’ Insurrections. The violence was so significant that civil authorities were unable to resist the attack and military and other federal agencies had to be called in.

---

24 See 69 Cong. Globe, 39 Cong. 1st Sess. 2534 (Rep. Eckley) (during debates over clause, arguing that “[b]y following the precedents of our past history will we find the path of safety,” then discussing approvingly the expulsions and investigations of representatives who supported the “small in comparison” Whiskey Rebellion); see also 12 U.S. Op. Atty. Gen. 141, 160 (1867) (opining that, in similarly-worded statute, “[t]he language here comprehends not only the late rebellion, but every past rebellion or insurrection which has happened in the United States”).
Immediately after the attack, the U.S. Department of Justice characterized January 6 as an insurrection. More recently, over a dozen people—including some who never entered the Capitol—have been convicted of or pleaded guilty to seditious conspiracy under 18 U.S.C. § 2384, the elements of which track almost exactly the federal criminal offense of insurrection under 18 U.S.C. § 2383.25

Dozens of court decisions around the country have characterized the January 6 attack as an insurrection.26 And in both 2022 and 2023, courts have squarely held that January 6 constituted an “insurrection” within the meaning of Section Three of the Fourteenth Amendment. Anderson v. Griswold, No. 2023CV32577 (Colo. Dist. Ct. Nov. 17, 2023), slip op. at 66-71; State of New Mexico ex rel. White v. Couy Griffin, slip op. at 29-33, 2022 WL 4295619 (N.M. 1st Jud. Dist., Sept. 6, 2022), available at https://bit.ly/GriffinNM, appeal dismissed, No. S-1-SC-39571 (N.M. Nov. 15, 2022).

Finally, Congress itself has characterized the January 6 attack as an insurrection. The Senate unanimously characterized the January 6 25 Multiple individuals have already been convicted by a federal jury of seditious conspiracy, among other serious criminal charges, including: E. Stewart Rhodes, Kelly Meggs, Roberto Minuta, Joseph Hackett, David Moerschel, and Edward Vallejo. William Todd Wilson and Joshua James pleaded guilty to seditious conspiracy and other charges. Others are awaiting trial. See U.S. Dep’t of Justice, Capitol Breach Cases, available at https://www.justice.gov/usao-dc/capitol-breaches.

---

attackers as “insurrectionists” five times in voting to award a Congressional Gold Medal for Capitol Police Officer Eugene Goodman. Then, in Public Law 117-32—which the House passed 406-21, and the Senate passed unanimously—Congress voted to award Congressional Gold Medals to Capitol Police for their conduct in the face of “insurrectionists” on January 6, 2021. In doing so, it declared, “On January 6, 2021, a mob of insurrectionists forced its way into the U.S. Capitol building and congressional office buildings and engaged in acts of vandalism, looting, and violently attacked Capitol Police officers.” Obviously, “insurrectionists” presuppose an “insurrection.” Similarly, bipartisan majorities of the House and Senate voted for articles of impeachment describing the attack as an “insurrection.” During the impeachment trial, former President Trump’s defense lawyer stated that “the question before us is not whether there was a violent insurrection of [sic] the Capitol. On that point, everyone agrees.”

The January 6 attack is no less an insurrection just because some participants envisioned slightly different versions of the day’s events. Plans were fluid and overlapped substantially with what a federal court has found to be a conspiracy to obstruct the Joint Session of Congress on January 6, 2021. Like the Whiskey and Shays’ Insurrections, the January 6 insurrection was loosely organized. But unlike them, it struck at the very heart of our nation’s democracy, and achieved a feat not even the Confederate rebellion managed: seizing the United States Capitol and disrupting the peaceful transfer of power.

---

B. Trump’s Involvement Constituted “Engagement” in Insurrection.

An individual need not personally commit an act of violence to have “engaged” in insurrection. See Powell, 65 N.C. at 709 (defendant paid to avoid serving in Confederate Army); Worthy, 63 N.C. at 203 (defendant simply served as county sheriff); White, slip op. at 34; Rowan, slip op. at 13. Nor does “engagement” require previous conviction of a criminal offense. See, e.g., Powell, 65 N.C. at 709 (defendant not charged with any prior crime); Worthy, 63 N.C. at 203

32 See also United States v. Powell, 27 F. Cas. 605, 607 (C.C.D.N.C. 1871).

33 See also In re Tate, 63 N.C. 308 (1869) (applying Worthy). In a similarly-worded 1867 statute with more severe consequences (disenfranchisement) than the Disqualification Clause, the Attorney General construed the statute to require “some direct overt act, done with the intent to further the rebellion.” 12 U.S. Op. Atty. Gen. 141, 164 (1867). But this was easily satisfied. Under the nineteenth-century understanding, in the context of a violent insurrection, even “one more voice” encouraging violence constitutes an overt act. White, slip op. at 35.
(defendant not charged with any crime); In re Tate, 63 N.C. 308 (1869) (defendant not charged with any crime); Gerard N. Magliocca, Amnesty and Section Three of the Fourteenth Amendment, 36 Const. Comment. 87, 98-99 (2021) (in special congressional action in 1868 to enforce Section 3 and remove Georgia legislators, none of whom had been charged criminally). No authority suggests that a criminal conviction was ever considered necessary to trigger the Disqualification Clause. See Rowan, slip op. at 13-14.

“Engage” includes both words and actions. Confederate leaders (from Jefferson Davis down) used words to tell subordinates what to do. Although “merely disloyal sentiments or expressions” may not be sufficient, 12 U.S. Op. Atty. Gen. 141, 164 (1867) (emphasis added), “marching orders or instructions to capture a particular objective, or to disrupt or obstruct a particular government proceeding, would appear to constitute ‘engagement’ under the Worthy-Powell standard.” Rowan, slip op. at 14; see also White, slip op. at 34.

Under the Worthy-Powell standard, Trump’s actions leading up to and on January 6, 2021 constituted “engagement” in insurrection. He called upon his followers to converge on Washington, D.C., saying that it would be “wild.” As Trump’s personal and campaign lawyer Rudy Giuliani explained to White House Chief of Staff Mark Meadows, Trump’s plan was to lead a march to the Capitol; in Meadows’ words of January 2, “things might get real, real bad on January 6.”

On the morning of January 6, Trump took active steps to ensure that his supporters retained their weapons in preparation for the march.

---

34 Rather than require a criminal conviction as a prerequisite to a civil action to disqualify an officeholder, Congress did the reverse and imposed criminal penalties for those who held office in defiance of the Disqualification Clause. See Act of May 31, 1870, ch. 114, § 15, 16 Stat. 140, 143.

35 To the extent (if any) that an “overt act” may be needed, words can constitute an “overt act,” just as words may constitute an “overt act” under the Treason Clause, e.g., Chandler v. United States, 171 F.2d 921, 938 (1st Cir. 1948) (enumerating examples, such as conveying military intelligence to the enemy), or for purposes of conspiracy law, e.g., United States v. Donner, 497 F.2d 184, 192 (7th Cir. 1974) (even “constitutionally protected speech may nevertheless be an overt act in a conspiracy charge”). See Rowan, slip op. at 14.
to the Capitol. Before Trump’s speech, many of Trump’s assembled followers, heavily armed with AR-15s, Glocks, body armor, spears, and bear spray, were dissuaded from approaching closely by metal detectors and the fear that their weapons would be detected and confiscated by security. When he learned of this, Trump demanded that the metal detectors be removed so that his armed supporters would not fear detection and confiscation of their weapons. As he explained, “I don’t f---ing care that they have weapons. They’re not here to hurt me.” To the contrary, Trump said that security officials should let his heavily armed supporters retain their weapons and then march to the Capitol. In fact, he continued to want to lead the march, and was thwarted only by the Secret Service. He publicly threatened Vice President Pence and instructed his assembled followers—whom he knew were armed—to march to the Capitol, whereupon they violently captured the building, nearly assassinated elected officials, and successfully disrupted and obstructed the certification of presidential votes.

Finally, even as the insurrection raged and Members of Congress sheltered in secure rooms from the attack, Trump refused, for hours, to intervene in any way to stop the insurrection, despite his own close political allies and family members (all of whom were convinced, correctly, that his remarks could change events) begging him to order a general retreat. In addition, Trump—as the commander in chief—took no action for hours to order any military response as a co-equal branch of the government was overrun. In fact, when he was informed that the mob besieging the Capitol was chanting “hang Mike Pence!,” he said that Vice President deserved death and the insurrectionists weren’t doing anything wrong.

For these reasons, the Anderson court concluded that Trump engaged in insurrection. See Anderson, slip op. at 72-95.

To be sure, Trump did not himself attack the Capitol, or fire a gun. But neither did Jefferson Davis.

IV. Conclusions

As set forth above, I have the authority—subject, of course, to judicial review under applicable state or federal law—to exclude from the ballot any presidential candidate who does not meet the qualifications for office, including a candidate who is non-natural-born, is underage, or has broken an oath to support the Constitution and engaged in insurrection.

On January 20, 2017, Trump swore an oath to support the Constitution as an officer of the United States, i.e., as president. The events of January 6, 2021 constituted an “insurrection” within the meaning of Section 3 of the Fourteenth Amendment, and Trump “engaged” in that insurrection within the meaning of Section 3. Consequently, he is disqualified from holding “any office” under the United States—including the presidency. As a result, he is ineligible to appear on the presidential primary ballot in Oregon.

/s/ __________

LaVonne Griffin-Valade

Secretary of State

36 Trump satisfies Section 3’s jurisdictional clause because he took the oath as an “officer of the United States.” While some have suggested that the President of the United States is not an “officer of the United States,” see Josh Blackman & Seth Barrett Tillman, Is the President an ‘Officer of the United States’ for Purposes of Section 3 of the Fourteenth Amendment?, 15 N.Y.U. J. L. & Liberty 1 (2021), this view is not consistent with Reconstruction-era English usage. See See John Vlahoplus, Insurrection, Disqualification, and the Presidency, 13 Brit. J. Am. Legal Stud. __ (forthcoming 2024), available at https://papers.ssrn.com/sol3/papers.cfm?abstract_id=4440157 (enumerating repeated Reconstruction-era public and official references to the president as the “executive officer of the United States”); Baude & Paulsen, supra. Thus, in 1866 it was well understood that a reference to “officer of the United States” included the President. The presidency is also a “disqualified-from” position under the rubric of “office . . . under the United States.” This question was settled explicitly during congressional debates. See Gerard N. Magliocca, Amnesty and Section Three of the Fourteenth Amendment, 36 Const. Comment. 87, 93 (2021) (quoting colloquy).